Acts to Wipe Out Class 3 Draft Ratings

WPM STUDYING ELIMINATION OF 3A, 3B, 3C

Farmers, War Workers, and Fathers Prior to Dec. 7 Seen Only Ones To Be Deferred.

BOARDS WAIT ORDERS

Richland Draft Officials Say New Rule Would Apply To Nearly All on Lists.

Making another of its frequent changes in draft classification, the War Manpower commission in Washington today took steps to wipe out "Class 3" draft ratings.

If the plan now pending goes through it would mean the end of such classifications as 3-A, 3-B and 3-C.

Richland county's three selective service boards had not yet been informed of the impending change in orders but when it comes, in the opinion of local draft officials, it will practically eliminate deferrments except in the case of Board No. 3, where a great share of the registrants are farmers. Board No. 3 serves Richland county outside of Mansfield and Madison township.

"The city boards will have left only those who cannot pass their physical examinations and a mere handful of those on defense jobs that are classed as highly skilled," a board attache said.

National selective service headquarters is expected to order such reclasssifications within the next three weeks with the possible exception of those with children born prior to Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, a Washington news source reported.

The new schedule would call for reclassification of dependency classes as follows:

Married men not entitled to occupational deferment (now 3-A)—1-A.

Married men who are necessary or essential in their civilian job (now 3-A or 3-B)—2-A.

Married men who are necessary or essential to the war production program (now 3-B)—2-B.

Married men who are necessary or essential in agriculture (now 3-C).

These classifications are the same as those accorded single men in the past and those in 2-B and 2-C have what amounts to a virtual duration deferment. Those

Making Life Miserable for the Japs In the Aleutians, Solomons

These three pictures show how American air strength is battering the Japanese in the Pacific, on all theaters. At top left, an official U. S. army picture shows "bombs away" headed for the Japanese base at Kiska in the Aleutians. Picture at the top right shows the results. The Jap Kiska base is already pitted with bomb pits and strewn wrecked buildings. U. S. bombers aren't confining their operations to the Aleutians, however. Lower picture was made from a navy dive bomber over Munda in the South Pacific as the planes were returning to their base after bombing Jap anti-aircraft installations near Munda airport. Beneath the tail of the plane can be seen mushrooming clouds of smoke where Japanese anti-aircraft guns are vainly blasting away at the sky.

HOUSE TO GET PAY RAISE BILL

Ohio's Biggest Appropriation Measure Due at Skeleton Session Friday.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—The $369,000,000 general appropriations bill, providing 10 per cent pay raises for all state employes as well as for financial operation of the state for the current biennium, will be reported out by the house finance committee and presented to the house in a skeleton session tomorrow, Committee Chairman Paul Ballard (R., Jackson) said today.

Ballard's statement that raises would be provided for all employes goes further than Governor Bricker's recommendation in his inaugural address January 11 that the raises be limited to those earnings less than $2,000.

The chairman said that there were sufficient funds provided in the big bill to give raises to all employes, even those now earning more than $2,000 annually. He was uncertain as to how much the raise to those in the higher brackets would be, but indicated that it would be at least 10 per cent of the first $2,000.

"They should get a raise of at least $200" he said. "And all raises will be retroactive in some fashion to the first of the year."

The fact that the bill will be submitted to a skeleton session Friday indicated that the governor's pressure on the assembly is beginning to bear fruit. Until now in this session the solons

No, We Won't Have 8-Inch Snow Like A Year Ago Today

While Mansfielders one year ago today were digging themselves out of the heaviest snowfall of the fading winter season this April 1 will be cahracterized by scattered thunderstorms and cooler temperatures during the afternoon and frost tonight.

Weather records kept by Clarence Silcott, assistant city engineer, show that on March 30 a year ago Mansfield was blanketed by eight inches of snow which halted all city and county school bus travel on March 31. County roads were blocked in many places by drifts which were melting rapidly under a warm sun of April Fool's day.

Mansfield's highest temperature yesterday probably matched all-time records when it reached a maximum of 76 degrees above zero around 4 p. m. Lowest for the 24-hour period ending at noon today was 48, for an average of 62, well above an 18-year mean of 41.5. Temperature at noon today was 55 degrees with a slightly overcast sky hinting showers.

According to almanacs and other proverbial garden guides this is the day to plant peas if you want

LEAR TO RETIRE

Famed Head of Second Army Nearly 64 Year Age Limit.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(U.P.)—Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, Second army commander, announced today he would retire from active duty May 31.

Lear, a soldier for 45 years, said he would be 64 years old—the age at which retirement is compulsory under statutory law—May 12.

FACES JUDGE

Soldier, Indicted For Murder, Enters Plea Saturday.

BUCYRUS—Glore Bevard, 33-year-old soldier from Camp Millard, will be arraigned before Common Pleas Judge C. U. Ahl at 10 a. m. Saturday on the charge of second degree murder for his confessed killing of Mrs. Wilma Reed, 29, as the culmination of a quarrel in their apartment here the night of March 22.

Bevard surrendered to military authorities a week ago after hiding out three days following the slaying. Last Saturday in mayor's court he pleaded guilty of first degree murder and was bound over to the Crawford county grand jury which returned the second degree indictment Wednesday. A guilty plea Saturday will entail a sentence of life imprisonment.

The grand jury also returned indictments against Clarence Kent of Crestline, who is charged with assault and battery. The complaining witnesses, Ethel Reed and Bernice Britt, testified that Kent assaulted them during a test black-out March 19.

CRASH KILLS 7

FLEMINGTON, N. J. —(U.P.)— Seven persons were killed when a navy plane crashed southwest of here last night.

Five naval fliers bailed out of the plane and parachuted to the ground. One was injured. The names of those aboard were not revealed.

Two Theories Held as Kent Buzzes With Talk of Murder

(By International News Service)

AKRON—The college town of Kent buzzed with talk of murder today as Summit county authorities took divergent views in the double killing of pretty 23-year-old co-ed Lucille Marie D'Aprano of Cleveland and George Washington Reynolds, 55 - year - old Negro chief cook of the exclusive Twin Lakes Country club.

Coroner R. E. Amos clung to his theory that Lucille and Reynolds had been murdered in Reynolds' automobile as the couple sat in his parked car a few miles from Kent State university, where the girl was to have graduated next August as a teacher.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Robert L. Smith insisted it was murder and suicide although only one bullet had been found in Reynolds' body. A second wound, Smith said, was caused by a bullet, while Amos declared it was made by the thrust of a knife or an icepick.

While Smith prepared to question co-ed friends of Miss D'Aprano's today, the coroner made arrangements to pray the body of the cook in an effort to locate the second bullet.

Miss D'Aprano was shot twice through the left lung and heart last Sunday night. Their bodies were discovered by a farmer, Charles Drushel, when he returned from work Tuesday night.

Smith said he believed Miss D'Aprano had sought to break off with Reynolds, since she intended to pursue a teaching career, and that she met Reynolds in Cleveland Sunday night and they drove

PROBE ASKED

American Majority Named In Investigation Request.

COLUMBUS—Before the house of Representatives today was a resolution proposing that the attorney general investigate the American Majority of Elyria, an organization which favored a bill to abolish the $5-a-day ditch inspection fees of county commissioners. The measure was passed by the house Tuesday.

The resolution said T. A. M. was not registered with the secretary of state, as required of lobbyists.

The inquiry was asked by three members who opposed the anti-fee bill, Reps. Otis J. Johnson of Mercer county, J. E. Simpson of Hardin and Robert A. Wilkinson of Van Wert, all Republicans.

Motorists Given 5 More Days To Get Auto License Stickers

Mansfield and Richland county motorists who have failed to obtain their 1943 automobile license stickers today were given an extra five days in which to obtain them.

Harold Culbert, assistant state registrant of motor vehicles, said in Columbus that police officials throughout the state had been asked to "overlook absence of 1943 stickers for the next few days" because arrests might prevent war workers from going to their jobs, stop the movement of vital war materials, or otherwise impede the war effort.

Culbert reported Ohio motorists and commercial operators "by the thousands" had failed to obtain new stickers before last night's midnight deadline.

Deputy Registrar Jack R. Berger of the Richland Auto club announced this morning that the total number of stickers sold so far is 9,735, compared with the 1942 figure of 14,810, a drop of 34 per cent.

With the five-day extension, Berger predicted that this year's sales would approach the 1942 level.

Truck tag sales are also behind 1942 figures, Berger reported with 1,255 tags sold to date, compared with approximately 3,000 last year.

WARNS INDUSTRY OF HUGE TASKS

Stilwell Tells Manufacturers They Must Soften Jolt of Post-War Transition.

It's the responsibility of American industry to start planning now to meet the huge post-war tasks of providing jobs for millions of men returning from the war fronts, softening the jolt of transition from war-time to peace-time production, and re-establishing free enterprise, Charles J. Stilwell, Cleveland industrialist, told 320 members and guests of the Mansfield Manufacturers' club last night at their annual meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

During the dinner session, Reese Mills of the Westinghouse plant, assumed the presidency of the club which represents all the city's industries. Mills, assistant manager of the electrical appliance division at Westinghouse, succeeds Lewis Leinsdorf, 31-year-old Hungarian-born artist who studied in Vienna, was appointed last night. He succeeds Dr. Arturo Rodzinski, who takes over as conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra at the end of the present season.

Leinsdorf has been with the Metropolitan opera since 1937.

LEWIS-FARM COALITION ON INCOME SEEN

Action To Boost Wages and Prices Being Rumored In Washington.

DISCUSSIONS HELD

Rural Leaders See Little Chance of Compromise With President.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Usually well-informed farm and labor sources said today they had heard discussions of the possibility that John L. Lewis and farm organization heads might cooperate in an effort to boost wages and farm prices.

They emphasized that there have as yet been no formal negotiations looking toward such a farmer-labor coalition, but they said that there have been informal discussions in both groups. Neither labor nor farm organization leaders would comment on the reports.

Lewis is seeking a wage increase of $2-a-day for his 450,000 bituminous coal miners. The War Labor Board has indicated clearly that it will reject the demand when it receives it, probably this month.

The failure of President Roosevelt to give Food Administration Chester C. Davis full authority over farm prices has embittered some farm organization leaders who seek higher prices.

The appointment of Davis, on the recommendation of the farm leaders, was generally regarded as a compromise between the farm bloc supporting bills to increase farm prices and administration opposition to any increase in farm prices. As a result of the food program conference at the White House yesterday, the farm leaders now believe a compromise to be unlikely.

Mr. Roosevelt, they said, emphasized that he has a labor wage fight coming up and that he could not afford to jeopardize his chances of winning that battle with Lewis by allowing farm prices to rise. They said he appeared determined to keep both wages and farm prices stable.

He indicated intention of extending government subsidies. The farm heads quoted him as saying he was "trying to think of another name for subsidies." They and farm congressmen are

JURY CONVENES

15 Cases on Docket as Grand Jury Gets Off to Late Start.

Richland county grand jurors were impaneled and sworn today to hear evidence in 15 cases.

Scheduled to convene at 9 a. m. today, it was much later than that when the group was organized for work, owing to the failure of one women to report an injury which incapacitated her from serving. Another member had misread his announcement believing he was summoned for service April 10, rather than April 1.

First of the cases to be weighed by the 15 jurors was expected to be that of Thomas Titus, colored, Mansfield, Harry Brown and Wayne Kohler, of Ashland, who were bound to the jury on charge of breaking and entering in connection with the theft of a slot machine and its contents from the William Pugh grocery Jan. 6.

Nazis Commandeer French Ships to Form African Escape Fleet

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The bulk of Marshal Erwin Rommel's army apparently is heading for a union with Axis forces in northern Tunisia under Col. Gen. Jurgen von Arnim, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said today. "Union of Rommel's and von Arnim's troops would give the Axis a strong army in good defensive positions," Stimson said.

(By United Press)

MADRID — Germany has commandeered the Italian fleet and all available French merchant ships preparatory to an attempt to evacuate Italo-German armies from Tunisia in an Axis "Dunkirk," it was reported here today.

No confirmation was possible.

Axis sources here calculated that 750,000 tons of shipping would be needed to evacuate the troops alone and the removal of tanks, guns and other heavy equipment would boost the tonnage needed to more than 1,000,000.

Reports from Rome said the Axis also has built numerous additional air fields and heavily reinforced fighter and bomber squadrons in Sicily and southern Italy to provide the most powerful air cover possible for the evacuation.

Axis informants acknowledged that Rommel cannot hope to hold out for more than a few additional weeks, even after he reaches the strong defense perimeter around Tunis and Bizerte.

Though British sources have estimated Axis forces in Tunisia as high as 250,000 to 300,000 men, information here purported to be reliable indicates they number about 180,000.

It was said that Adolf Hitler,

Eighth Army Hits Axis Rear Guard, As Yanks Drive Through Mines

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—British and American troops squeezed tighter the vise upon Axis divisions in Tunisia today while it was disclosed that the largest single force of U. S. Flying Fortresses ever massed had blasted the shipping and air fields of southern Sardinia, to which Field Marshal Erwin Rommel looks for aid.

Nearly 100 Fortresses, escorted by strong formations of Lightnings, struck yesterday at the Sardinian port of Cagliari and three airdromes, hit five merchant ships and 21 smaller craft, spread acres of fire across industrial targets, damaged or destroyed 57 aircraft aground and shot down 14 enemy fighter planes on a mission from which every raider returned.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army patrols began preliminary skirmishes against a line of Rommel's rear guards newly dug in about 24 miles north of Gabes on the coastal highway north to Sfax.

Military sources here said the line was about 12 miles north of newly-captured Oudref, flanking the coastal highway north to Sfax and well above the Gabes bottleneck.

To Montgomery's left, United States armored units from the command of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., pushing eastward in the El Guetaria Pass area encountered deep mine fields which made progress difficult, but the junction with the Eighth army appeared near.

"In the Gafsa sector (held by United States troops of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr.) Allied forces continued their attacks on

NON-STOP: Reds Push Attacks Against Nazis Despite Weather

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Overcoming the worst kinds of transportation difficulties, the Red army struggled today to increase the tempo of its offensives despite the bad weather.

In the Kuban valley of the western Caucasus, the Soviet troops drove on from Anastasevskaya, one of the Germans' last good-sized bases on the eastern side of the Kerch strait. The Soviet mid-night communique announced its capture yesterday. The strait is but 42 miles from the town.

There was evidence along other sectors that the Russians, by their great effort at quick consolidation of their gains, were beginning to give the Germans fresh worries. The Nazi commanders had been confident mud and slush resulting from the spring thaw would halt all operations. Now they are beginning to wonder if their wishes would come true.

The midday communique said that on the western front, after artillery duels, the Russians cleared the Germans from some positions, although there was no material change in this front before Smolensk.

The Germans threw numerous sharp counterattacks at the Soviet troops but gained no objectives, it was said. The Germans now were reported fighting from a good depth of defenses where they were well armed and fully manned, and boasting superior numbers in some sectors.

There was some evidence they were piling in reserves as they strained every effort to halt the Russian advance toward Smolensk.

The Germans continued sharp but not big-scale attacks in narrow sectors along the northern Donets river, it was declared.

The midnight communique also touched briefly on the progress of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's forces trying to recapture Staraya Russa, South of Lake Ilmen, it said, a German attacks was re-

LONG-RANGE: Fliers Extend Attacks on Japs In New Guinea

(By United Press)

Bombers under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command in the southwest Pacific have extended their long-range bombing raids to the western end of Dutch New Guinea.

A communique from Allied Australian headquarters said bombers struck yesterday at Babo, 750 miles from the Australian coast and 1100 miles from Port Moresby, Allied base at the other end of New Guinea. Fires visible 60 miles were set at Babo. Raids on other minor New Guinea spots in the Dutch end were reported.

A British communique from New Delhi said, however, that 10 Hurricanes and 12 Japanese fighters tangled over Burma yesterday, and that one enemy fighter was knocked down. Three British planes were missing from this and other operations. The British raided Bhamo, Japanese base in upper Burma, setting oil installations afire, and attacked Mandalay.

The Japanese made extravagant claims in connection with the Burma fighting. An imperial headquarters communique broadcast by radio Tokyo said 1,700 Japanese air units had been in action along the India-Burma area, sinking or damaging several ships and destroyed 20 Allied planes.

This doubtful claim was not confirmed by any Allied source nor was another Tokyo dispatch broadcast by radio Berlin declar-

'NOT MUCH NEWS'

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—(U.P.)—Lt. John W. Baker apparently hasn't what is declared by all newspaper men as the indispensable faculty of "a nose for news." The day after his cruiser was sunk in the Southern Pacific, he wrote a line to his mother here, stating: "Not much news. Will let you know if anything happens."

BIG GARDEN

300 To Grow Vegetables on 40 Acres at Dayton.

DAYTON.—(U.P.)—A 40-acre Victory garden project at Greenmont village here will be used as a model by federal mutual home projects throughout the country, Marvin M. Minard, chairman of the Greenmont village housing committee, reports. At the request of the government's mutual ownership housing agency a copy of the local project has been sent to Washington for distribution, Minard said.

Organized under a village garden committee, 300 families have signed up for gardens at one dollar apiece to pay for plowing and fertilizer. The 40 acre tract is divided into sections with garden work under the supervision of section chiefs, and one five-acre area has been set aside to be worked co-operatively on a quantity basis, the total produce to be divided among the workers.

Surplus produce on the 300 single-unit garden plots will be sold and traded among the villagers at a community hall.

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—When Deputy Sheriffs Phil Cuffaro and A. R. Kolte came to the home of Joseph Silva to pick him up on a charge of AWOL, they found that his mother had beaten them to the rap. She had already persuaded her son to return to the army, had escorted him to a streetcar and sent him off rejoicing.

I know where ya got that tie.

Where?

Round ya neck. Nyah, nyah, nyah. April Fool!

Ya shoe string's untied. Kick this paper sack. Have a bite of candy. April Fool! April Fool!

Yep, it's the first day of April, a national holiday for little kids, and big ones who never grew up. I had a notion to leave this space blank today with just the notation "First Day of April," but my manager assured me that would not be funny. Not that I credit my manager with too robust a sense of humor, y'understand.

This is hardly the proper sort of introduction to the following announcement:

Coolridge golf course will open officially Saturday.

That's the truth. Honest it is. No April Fool. At least I don't think so.

I haven't been able to contact Fred Huntsman the man with the big cigar, who operates Coolridge, but his club swingers assure me that frenzied Freddie has definitely set Saturday as opening date.

Clear out a locker for me, Fred. Here I come, bag and baggage. Also clubs and stuff.

Among the Coolridge clouters anxious for a bit of action come Saturday is 1941 champion Steve Stirtzinger.

Home on a two-week furlough, Steve is due to return to camp in Kentucky Sunday, and a round of golf would be a nice memory to carry back with him.

Steve isn't expecting to play much golf this summer. Nearest course to his camp is 50 miles. The wilds of Kentucky!

Evidence continues to accumulate that the golfers' chief worry this summer will be that most maligned man, the greens keeper.

Big Mike Rife, custodian of the greensward at Coolridge, is screen testing for the army, and anticipates a call in May. And of course his chief assistant, Jimmy Mustile, has been in service since late last summer.

And I hear that Greenskeeper Ryan of Possum Run can't get away from his war plant job this summer.

Naturally the Coolridge and Possum operators are taking steps to meet the problem, but it could be a headache all summer long unless they are lucky to land men too old for army and war work.

Mungo Shows Old Fireball

Again Predicts Twenty Victories For Season.

By SID FEDER

LAKEWOOD, N. J. (AP)—The only difference between a New years resolution and Van Lingle Mungo up to now has been that you had to break one and the other fizzed out all by himself.

Spring after spring, Van Lingle-Dingle has come out as regularly as the cuckoo in the clock and said his arm was better than ever and that he'd probably win 20. But come fall, and Van would head back to the Black Hills of Carolina without his 20 and with the old "wait'll next year" war cry.

It's the same old patter this spring as the bad boy from Nageland heads the New York Giants pitchers in training in the Jersey pine woods. Though everyone around this camp has heard Van's April New Years resolution time after time, they're inclined to believe maybe the big guy really has something this year.

He's the hardest working man in the outfit, he says he's throwing more freely than at any time in the past five years and he's the only elbower who already has turned loose his entire assortment of stuff. Above all, he's behaving himself like little junior waiting for Santa Claus.

Anyway, leading the drum-beating brigade for Mungo is Melvin Ott, the boss-man of the Giants, who has to grab at any ray of sunshine, no matter how beclouded, this spring.

"Last Sunday," Mel related, "Mungo was pitching to batters and asked me if it was okay to cut loose. It was my turn to hit, so I told him to go ahead. He whiffed me on three pitches, and the last one looked enough like his old fireball to make me glad he's on our side this season."

Indians Ready To Break Camp

Score Easy Victory Over Purdue Nine.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(AP)—Cleveland Indians prepared today to break camp Friday after scoring a 12 to 3 victory over Purdue university's nine, bolstered by Tribe hurlers in their second contest with outside opposition.

The Tribe's first stringers, facing three of their own hurlers on the mound for the collegians, scored their heaviest, six runs, in the golf inning when Ray Poat issued six bases on balls, five of them in succession. Otto Denning, recently assigned to first base, followed with a double to clear the sacks.

Errors on both sides were plentiful, five charged against the Indians and six against the Boilermakers.

Jim Bagby, pitching against the Tribe, gave up two runs, both unearned. Al Milnar, also hurling against his teammates, allowed three to cross the plate, two unearned. Chubby Dean, Vern Kennedy and Joe Heving worked for the Indians, allowing five hits. The Tribe collected a total of nine off Bagby, Milnar and Poat.

The game was the last the Indians will play here. On Friday they journey to Muncie for two frays against the Pittsburgh Pirates and for a week thereafter their headquarters will be at Indianapolis.

DEACON THINKS WELL OF YOUNG BOB MALLOY

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(AP)—Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds lets it be known he thinks well of Bob Malloy, a young right-handed pitcher who worked hard for Birmingham in the southern association last year.

The lad, who has been in organized baseball only two years, has considerable stuff and good control. A former student at the University of Pittsburgh, Malloy was picked off the Pittsburgh sandlots by Red scouts and sent to Birmingham in 1941. He won 13 and lost 13 there last year after losing his first six games.

Kid Goalie Stars As Bisons Win

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—A kid goalie playing his first season as a professional and a veteran forward share honors in the Buffalo Bison's first game victory over the Indianapolis Capitals in teh American Hockey league championship playoffs.

Eighteen-year-old Gordie Bell, who stepped off the Canadian amateur rinks to become the loop's leading net-minder, held the Caps to a single goal last night, as Morey Rinstad, a Bison since the club was formed three years ago, scored two of Buffalo's three tallies.

The second game in the best-of-five series will be played here Saturday night.

BYRON NELSON CLASSED 4-F BY DRAFT BOARD

TOLEDO—(INS)—Byron Nelson, a top-flight golfer, was classified 4-F by his selective service board today. The former P. G. A. and National Open champ said he planned to continue the game this summer for the benefit of war charities. Physicians said Nelson had an hereditary blood condition which resulted in profuse bleeding from any skin abrasion.

Army Calls Buck Athletes

Baseball Team Wrecked By Fort Hayes Order.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — The entire sports picture at Ohio State university underwent a radical change today with the announcement from Fort Hayes calling up within the next three weeks members of the army enlisted reserve corps.

The baseball squad faced a complete rebuilding program. Seven of the nine returning veterans already have entered the armed forces and the remaining pair Pitcher Tom Shanesy and Catcher George Mase, will report sometime before April 20.

At least three more track stars will be added to those already gone into service. Chet Thomas, Russ Owen and Bruce Hullinger are almost certain to go and there may be others.

The tennis team will be crippled by the loss of Phil English, Bob Harbrecht and Irwin Tobkin. But Coach Herman Wirthwein still will have sophomore Bobby Wasserman and freshman 'Chuck' Samson, two boys who may be the best doubles team the Buckeyes ever have had.

Pete Sohl and John Zoller, promising freshmen golfers, have been lost to the squad while Ed Reinhard recently entered service. Now Ted Lebash will be called up before April 20.

As for football—Coach Paul Brown is just keeping his fingers crossed and his eyes closed until complete returns are in.

Headquarters of the Fifth Service command announced the largest general call of the war yesterday when 1,325 men students at the university were ordered to report for active duty by April 20. When the general call is completed, it was expected that the only men students on the campus will be 3-A's and 4-F's, premedical students, predental students, Engineering students, and those in the navy recognition and indoctrination schools.

Brinks Show Confidence

Buy Cake Before Capturing Title.

Brinkerhoff bucketballers are a confident lot. Yesterday they took up a collection of 25 cents each for a cake with the inscription: "City Champions." And last night they went out and won that championship, defeating Newman 25-11 in the finals of the grade school tournament at John Simpson gym. All this in spite of the fact that Newman had lost only one game during the season and was favored to win.

They started out in a 2-2 tie in the first quarter, but the Brinks stepped out in the lead 7-3 at the half, and boosted their margin to 19-7 at the third quarter. Gregorio led the assault with six buckets for 12 points.

Prospect edged Bowman 15-12 in the consolation finals, after trailing 2-4 at the quarter and 4-8 at the half. Bowman was blanked 7-0 in the third period, and they tied 4-4 in the finale. Weaver got 12 points for Prospect and Carver 10 for Bowman.

The runners-up in the two basketball tournaments will meet in the first game of the evening when Toledo, second in the national invitation, takes on Georgetown, runner-up in the NCAA tourney.

WORK OUTDOORS

WALLINGFORD, Conn.—(AP)—Beginning today, the Boston Braves plan to hold all their workouts outdoors, regardless of weather. Manager Casey Stengel blames the soft soil in the cheat school cage for three injuries on his squad.

From the Minors

Angelo Guiliani, ex-catcher of the St. Louis Browns and last year with the Minneapolis team of the American Association, is back on the Washington roster this year. Guiliani, never a heavy hitter, has been up several times before. A righthander, he weighs 173 pounds and is 5 feet 11. His home is St. Paul.

WALKER SHINES

CAIRO, Ill.—(AP)—Manager Billy Southworth of the St. Louis Cardinals is looking with approval on the work of Harry Walker, who is trying to fill Enos Slaughter's shoes in the Cards' outfield.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Although the National A. A. U. swimming championships this week-end are packed full of record-breakers, about the only chance of busting a record will be in the opening event on some program. . . . Reason is that the New York A. C. pool is a bit too narrow to be called "fast." . . . Coaches say the same races at Yale would produce times one-fifth or two-fifths of a second faster.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

John Mooney, Salt Lake Telegram: "Anyway, the rookie crop which blooms so nicely in the grapefruit loop, ripens so nicely the first weeks of the season and then either rots or drops from the limb about midseason, may be retarded enough by the northland's cold to insure a better yield this fall in the major league apple orchard."

THE IOWA SYSTEM.

Football coaches likely will be keeping a close watch on spring football practice at the Iowa Pre-Flight school—and not with the idea of picking up a couple of good running guards. . . . The school will put a dozen squadron teams in the field and Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman plans to give half of them offenses patterning after his own Minnesota system and to teach the other six "T" formation plays. . . . They'll wind up a round-robin schedule with an all-star game between the two groups.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE.

Eric Tipton, the old Duke footballer who is No. 1 candidate for the Cincinnati Reds' left field job, still is trying to get into some branch of the armed forces although he has been turned down by all of them because of a perforated eardrum.

GONE GOOSE RHYME.

Sing a song of Beau Jack, he's the guy, you know,
With four and twenty backers, loaded up with dough.
He's fighting Henry Armstrong, who came back from the shelf.
It may be mighty tough on Beau if Hank is his old self.

SERVICE DEPT.

Daryl Parshall, the trotting horse pilot, has been sent to Camp Bliss, Tex., and is in the infantry. . . . Chief Specialist Curt Sandig, who divided the football headlines with Bill Dudley on the Pittsburgh Steelers last fall, hit the jackpot in his first venture as a basketball coach. In its first game his enlisted men's cage team at the Ottumwa, Ia., naval air station licked the defending champions of an independent tournament.

Marshall Beats Ezzard Charles

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Lloyd Marshall made his first professional start in his home town last night and the fans discovered they had been missing something.

The former city amateur middleweight titlist has been doing his ring work in California, where he claims the middleweight and light heavy championships.

In scoring an eight-round technical knockout over Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati, Marshall surpassed Jimmy Bivins' effort—and Bivins is generally regarded as the best of the light heavies and heavies who are still fighting for themselves instead of Uncle Sam. Bivins administered a terrific beating to Charles several months ago but Charles was able to go the 10-round route.

Janiro Wins Gloves Bout

Beats New Yorker In Chicago Champ Card.

CHICAGO—(AP)—So far as New York's Golden Gloves were concerned there was no fooling today—no fooling that the midwest grows its amateur boxers tough.

The Manhattan fighters have been trying to whip the midwesterners at Chicago ever since the intercity bouts were originated in 1928. Even in their own backyard, the New Yorkers encountered aggravating resistance, winning only four times in the 16-year-old rivalry.

But last night their efforts reached a climax of futility. The New Yorkers won only two of the 16 bouts in which a champion and an alternate from each team fought in the eight weight classes. Their lowest setback previously was in 1931, when Chicago won, 13 to 3.

For fans liking a shade of finesse with their roughhouse battling, Chicago presented Baby Face Tony Janiro, 16-year-old Youngstown, O., lad who never has lost a fight, and Leroy Jackson, Cleveland Negro who won the National A. A. U. title in 1942.

Janiro did a masterful job against New York's Georgie Cooper for the 126-pound title. Cooper kept Janiro alert with several left hooks in a stirring engagement, but throughout it was Janiro who piled up points with short jolting jabs to both head and body.

Janiro, one of six boys in a family, started fighting when he was 15. Last night's victory was his 28th consecutive, and he says he wants to go on to become a professional.

"Things have been pretty tough at home," he said. "I would like to make them a lot easier if I can."

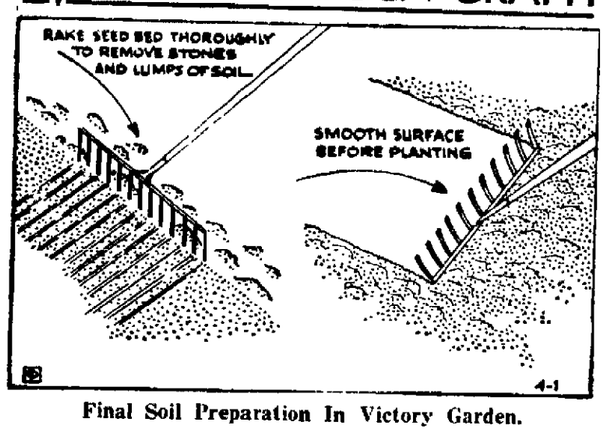
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Final Soil Preparation In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released By Central Press Assn.)

Well prepared soil means that the Victory vegetable plants will grow much more vigorously and that many hours of hoeing and cultivating will be saved later on in the season.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the garden rake is the tool to be used for the final work of fitting the seed bed before the seeds themselves are planted. The soil should be raked immediately after it has been turned and broken up. The raking at this time will prevent the formation of hard, dried lumps of soil. Use of the rake at this time also enables one to remove any stones, rough materials or pieces of wood

After raking the soil and fitting it until it is finely broken up, turn the rake over and use the back edge of it to level and smooth off the seed bed as illustrated. The rake should be worked back and forth very lightly for if it is allowed to "dig in" it will drag the soil into ridges instead of smoothing it off for seeding.

Do not become too ambitious when planting the Victory vegetable seeds and plant them all at the same time Instead, plan and plant for a succession cropping of a few of the family's favorite vegetables. Do this by planting the seeds of certain vegetables a week or two apart.

COSTLY TRIP

Farmer Fined For Cruelty To His Team, Drinking.

WILMINGTON —(INS)— Farmer William Anders will be kind to dumb animals in the future as he remembered a trip to Wilmington which proved to be expensive because of his cruelty.

Arrested by policemen for tieing his team of horses to a fence on the edge of town, and leaving them there for eight hours without water or feed during a heavy rainstorm, Anders drew fines aggregating $47.20.

The farmer was fined $20 and costs of $8.60 on the animal cruelty charge by Mayor Corwin C. Nichols and in addition was assessed $10 and costs for intoxication.

CLOCKS GO TO WAR

NEW ORLEANS—(INS)—A New Orleans drugstore gets about 100 calls a day for alarm clocks, has none for sale, and can't get any more. Alarm clocks have gone to war.

GHOST OF MY LOVE +

CHAPTER I

The heavy door burst open and erupted Rosemary, then closed itself with an unctuous rumble and hiss. Mocking her, laughter filtered down the foyer and out on the walk; harsh laughter from Harry Boyle. She stood a moment, nursing her fury, staring out at the Washington night. To her in this mood, and at this hour, the capital looked bleak, as if devastated by enemy bombs.

"Is there some trouble, miss?"

She turned a startled look at the aged doorman.

"You were—pardon me—about to cry," he added. "Perhaps I—"

"No thanks," she managed, and started away. But she must already have been sobbing, she realized; and his merest gesture of kindness had broken her control, so that now she carried her face in her hands in sheer misery. She was grateful that the hour was 3 a. m.

Rain had been falling, so that even in normal times taxis would have been at a premium now. Half a block from the night club door she looked about. There sat Harry's car, with its undeserved C card, mocking her again. A great many people were in sight but most of them were walking, so she herself moved on. It was 12 blocks to her apartment. At the seventh block, a hole-in-the-wall lunch counter proved friendly, too.

"Raw night, miss," the waiter said, affably. "You look done in."

"Coffee—if there is any," she pleaded.

"There is, for the likes of you. Thick, too."

She nodded thanks, afraid to speak much. Friendliness should never be greeted by tears, she reasoned. The coffee helped her get control. He leaned on an elbow, down counter a ways, to dissect the weather again.

"You'd ought to be home with your mama," he concluded, "instead of rambling at this hour. And you been crying. Was it a sailor, soldier, or marine?"

She just looked at him, over her cup.

"You high school girls need chaperones." He was re-filling her cup, itself a phenomenon. "I got two of 'em. You git distracted by headlines and uniforms. Now let me tell you something—"

It should have been a compliment, his mistaking her age, but she had to flee from his benevolence. She was consumed with hate, or the nearest thing to hate that she was capable of.

The intensity of it didn't subside until she had walked face-on in the rain and was nearing her own front door. By then, hatred had become despair. Something inside her had been killed, she realized; something that once was magnificent, grand. The doorman's very assumption that she should be happy, echoed by the coffee man, was enough to intensify the bleakness in her soul.

She crept up to her cubbyhole of a room—which cost her a cold $20 a week take-it-or-leave-it—and felt anew its utter lack of cheer. Until after 4 o'clock she sat curled in a rocker, thinking.

"I'll look a fright tomorrow," she finally admitted. "At least I'd better lie down."

By 5:30 she managed to sleep, but she would have to be up at eight. Little Boss himself had scheduled a conference for nine this morning.

Conf. cancelled due emergency orders from chief. Pls bring Murdock specs and cost estimates my office 10.

That note, in Little Boss' own penciled scrawl, was on her desk when she came to the office at 8:47 o'clock. Miss Dealy, stenographer, came promptly to her, too

"They want you at 10, Rosemary," she began. "Said to remind you, sure. It's something new, and important."

"Thanks, Jane. It's about the Murdock job. Get me the blueprints, please."

But the stenographer was looking at her face. "You aren't getting the flu, or anything?" she asked. "You look peaked."

"I'm all right," Rosemary insisted.

Here was that friendliness again. So precious, usually; so trying now. The spectre of what happened last night still lay within her, and she couldn't unburden herself to any of these people who tried to be kind. She felt her lip quiver a little. She sat down at her desk and tried to concentrate on work. Work. It was all she could ever hope for again. Work. Slavery, self-inflicted, on a frustrated soul. At a quarter of 10 she went into the larger office.

The man barely glanced up, then began speaking. "The reports have come in sooner than expected, Rosemary. If you can depend now on the steel tonnage coming through, you could take Barnes and Tipton and whip out the whole thing inside of a week."

He was very brusque, studying a map on his desk. He made a circle with a pencil. "This site isn't the best, but it's the quickest. Two months delay might be fatal to the whole idea. Did you bring the cost sheets?"

She had to look up then, and for a moment her eyes met his. She felt as pale as she looked. He talked again, but in shorter sentences, and got only yes and no from her. A feeling flowed between them; a subtle, intangible, but potent thing.

Presently, therefore, Little Boss put down his pencil, swiveled back slowly in his red-and-chromium office chair and stared a moment. Then he spoke very gently.

"Rosemary, you have been crying, haven't you." It was a statement, not a question. And it was not acknowledged. Oddly enough, it embarrassed her, made her blush.

He drummed a moment on the plate glass that spread across the vast expanse of his desk. Like a mountain lake it mirrored the colors around, including the lovely color and form that was Rosemary.

"I say, you have been crying, haven't you?"

Rosemary nodded. Here was that kindness again! But Little Boss was always kind, and he was no stranger, and he had a different manner about him. Perhaps if she could only share her secret with him—! But no. That would be unthinkable.

She didn't speak because she was afraid of what her voice might do. Little Boss discerned that, also, and looked away. The business-like rush in his manner seemed to have vanished.

"Go wash your face," he ordered, after a bit. "Take several deep breaths. Get a candy bar from the slot machine in the hall. Eat all of it—you girls are so afraid of gaining!" He smiled then. "And don't cry any more on duty, or tears will drop on the blueprints and stain them. Has he been mistreating you again?"

Her eyes widened at his question. How much did Little Boss know! She knew he was smart. As smart as his father, Big Boss. But she was just one of nearly 50 junior architects in this office alone, and the two bosses had charge of a whole floor here in this great building at Washington.

"He has," Little Boss answered his own question, nodding. "If you wish it, I will personally go choke him."

"Oh, Little Boss!" All at once Rosemary broke down.

She plopped into the guest chair across from him, where really important people often sat, and this time she hid her face to cry in little-girl abandon. Before, she had nursed anger. Now here was release. Minutes passed. Big Boss himself came in but stood quiet after a silent Sh-h-h-h signal from his son. Rosemary looked up and was horrified.

All those callers waiting in the anteroom, all this rush work to be done, and she in here intruding her personal problem on both bosses themselves! They would probably fire her at once, in fact they ought to.

She grabbed up her papers and fled from the room.

It was three days before she faced Little Boss alone again. And three days if you are as young as Rosemary—can be a long and healing time.

She sat in a Pullman train click-clacking toward the west. In three days inconceivable things had happened, even though life is paced that way in the urgent rush at Washington. As expected, she had been fired. But she was promptly re-hired by the same employers, who made the new job a sort of challenge

"I wonder if you are capable of handling this." Big Boss had said loftily. "After all, the university you went to is not, uh—"

"It's the best architectural school in the country!" Rosemary had flashed back.

"But you are only a girl, my dear."

"What of that! Women are doing everything. You men are so stuffy about things sometimes!"

She had made a most disrespectful outburst of it. But the two bosses had seemed almost deliberately to make her mad. Looking back now she realized that the little business scrap had restored her in a measure. It had brought back considerable self-respect and poise, lessening somewhat the sting of Harry Boyle's contemptible action. Harry Boyle. Thinking of him, envisioning him anew, she shuddered even now.

She became aware that Little Boss was standing at her Pullman section, smiling down at her.

"Knock-knock-knock, mind if I come in?"

She laughed a little, touched as always by his manner. She made room for him to sit down

"It's all so wonderful," she told him for at least the fourth or fifth time, "you doing this for me."

Shopping For Rationed Foods IS EASY AT YOUR A. & P...

Trust your A. & P. to think up ways to make your shopping for rationed foods easy. If you've been worried about remembering what foods you can get with your blue stamps . . . and what items you can get with your red stamps, ease your mind. A. & P. has installed a simple system that lets you know at a glance what stamps to use for each rationed food.

When you shop at A. & P. the RED NUMBERS on the ration point tags displayed with rationed foods tell that these items can be "bought" with RED STAMPS . . . the BLUE NUMBERS on the tags displayed with rationed foods tell you that the stamps you are required to "spend" are BLUE. That's all there is to it . . . Red numbers mean red stamps; blue numbers mean blue stamps.

Your RED stamps of War Ration Book No. 2 are valid for these foods: Fresh, Smoked and Canned Meats, Canned Fish and Shell Fish, Cheese (many perishable cheeses are not rationed!) Butter, margarine, and most fats and oils (mayonnaise and salad dressing are not rationed!) RED numbers on A&P Ration point tags on shelves, bins, and displays of foods tell you that RED STAMPS are required for their purchase.

Your BLUE stamps of War Ration Book No. 2 are valid for these foods: Canned and bottled fruits and vegetables, juices, soups, baby foods and peas, beans and lentils, dehydrated soups, ketchup and chili sauce, etc. These are marked with BLUE numerals to tell you that your BLUE STAMPS are required for their purchase.

STOCKS FOUND MOVING OVER NARROW ROUTE

Bank Clearings Barometer Falls Off Trifle But Still Beats 1942.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks moved over a narrow route in today's early market proceedings.

Unchanged to up a shade at a moderately active opening were Anaconda, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Warner Bros. and Rario Corp. Minor declines were posted for Southern Railway, Douglas Aircraft and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Market analysts saw an encouraging sign in the Dun & Bradstreet bank clearings summary which disclosed that, while this barometer, for the week ended Wednesday, was off a trifle from the previous week, it was up 29.9 per cent from the like 1942 period.

THEATERS

His 367th Film.

When you start counting your motion pictures in the hundreds, then you enjoy the right to be compared with him. But it's only when your total comes to 367 that you've tied Harry Carey, veteran character actor, currently appearing in the Warner Brothers' picture, "Air Force," now showing at the Ohio. Carey's professional career represents 34 years in the show business, beginning with one-reelers he made on Staten Island, N. Y., way back in the nickelodeon days. He appears as Sergeant White in this war picture.

American Empire.

Packed with action and color of the Texas cattle-raising country in post-Civil war days, "American Empire," released through United Artists, is now playing at the Madison. It is a picture with a historical background—covering a few decades after 1865—and stars Richard Dix, Leo Carrillo, and Preston Foster. Co-attraction at the Madison is "The Most Dangerous Game," starring Joel McCrea and Faye Wray.

Fred Waring's Band.

Aircraft.

Aircraft of numerous types — British, German and Italian—were needed by Michael Balcon for "Ships With Wings," now showing at the Park. Many of the planes had to be reproduced in the studio, with the help of the editor of a British flying paper. The picture stars John Clements.

Cash Ceilings In Effect Today on Pork, Others Due

WASHINGTON —(INS)—Specific dollars-and-cents retail price ceilings on pork went into effect today as the OPA prepared to issue similar schedules of maximum retail prices for beef, lamb, mutton and veal.

Also starting today was the government's nation-wide permit system for animal slaughterers under which only meat intended for home consumption can be slaughtered without federal clearance.

Both moves were described by OPA officials as a major blow against the black market and the pork ceilings were said to be a long step forward in OPA's announced program of simplifying retail food pricing.

Under the pork regulation all butchers are required to post in a prominent spot an official, government-printed table of the maximum prices they are allowed to charge.

Ex-war Contract Agent Says He Made $112,000 In Year.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— A former Washington war contract agent, now a lieutenant in the navy, told the house naval affairs committee today that he earned $112,371 in 1942 and that he spent $7,480 for entertainment and "business gratuities."

The witness, Lt. Luther M. Bolton, said that after the house investigation of commission agents began last summer he shifted to a salary basis.

WARNS INDUSTRY OF HUGE TASKS

Stilwell Tells Manufacturers They Must Soften Jolt of Post-War Transition.

F. Hartman, vice president of the Hartman Electrical Manufacturing company. A. L. Allen, personnel director at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, is the club's new vice president.

"Industry must be ready and able to offer greater opportunities than ever to the millions of men who will be coming back home to their jobs," said Stilwell who is president of the Warner and Swasey company, Cleveland, and former president of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce.

"I maintain that these men who will return should be shown preference over all others," he said. "Surely no one is so selfish as to refuse to plan for the best for the men who are fighting for us now. I'm afraid of what some of them will think of our planning when they come back for their jobs!

What to do with the workers, including millions of women, who will be replaced by men now at war gives management another major problem, Stilwell said.

"We have welcomed women into our plants. They have literally saved the day in some cases," he continued. "We assume that many of them will return voluntarily to normal life, but many have found a permanent place in industry, and I believe we are going to have to find places for them."

Industry, in the less than two years since war was declared, has done the impossible by exceeding all expectations in production, the Clevelander said, and it now occupies a place of leadership and respect which will be of great value in meeting the post-war problems.

"The experience we are gaining now, particularly in reference to training new workers and meeting production problems, will be invaluable in the era to follow," he added.

Predicting a vast market for domestic goods following the war, Stillwell said the demand for civilian products will be increased as the war goes on.

"We have a temporary stoppage now, but we'll need the same things after the war that we bought before. Uncle Sam is the only customer we have now, millions of American families and, I hope the whole world, will be our market when hostilities are over.

"The war has brought many new methods of production and products of science that are going to help solve the post-war economic problems. To mention a few, there's plastics, rayons, synthetic rubber, and new uses for farm products.

"Low prices for consumer goods help to defeat inflation, and the competitive market industries will face after the war is sure to bring more efficient manufacturing methods and lower selling prices. The customer and his ability to buy will determine prices."

In the highly competitive market that is certain to follow the war, extensive advertising campaigns will be necessary and buyer surveys will be more important than ever before, Stilwell said.

He urged industry to make its desires felt in Washington, adding that government officials, in their quest for a solution to the post-war labor problems, are in a receptive mood.

"The government needs business help and is asking for it," he said. "Tell your government of your problems and opinions. Tell them in Washington we need free enterprise after the war and not theoretical planning.

"We can win the peace, and I'm convinced we'll never seriously accept a socialist state although plans leading to socialism are being discussed now in Washington."

At the request of President Hartman of the club, Stilwell told of the "split-shift" plan adopted by the Warner and Swasey company.

Unable to hire skilled workers, the firm began employing teachers, lawyers, office workers, and men from other businesses and professions for four hours in the evening. More than 300 such workers are now on jobs in the plant.

The workers consider it mental relaxation to get into a factory job for a short time after their regular working period and they have proved valuable to the firm," he said.

"We now have four members of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra, real estate salesmen, dance orchestra leaders, and a number of lawyers working four hours an evening for 65 cents an hour—and there's almost no absenteeism."

Reviewing the work of the Manufacturers' club during the past year, President Hartman listed six major projects in which the club had a part. They included the training of war workers in plants, completion of the Rocky Fork dredging, assistance in the scrap campaign, participation in the bond drive, help in making an employment survey, support for the Victory Garden plan and the day nursery school project for children of war workers.

Hartman named six new industries which have come to Mansfield in the past year, introducing officials of four of them.

Added to the city's industrial picture were the Great Lakes Steel plant, Meisse laboratories, Carter-Pryor Manufacturing company, Clyridon Manufacturing company, Star Rubber company, and the National Ring and Leather company.

E. F. Patterson of Great Lakes Steel said the firm is now employing 400 workers in the city, producing fabricated steel for army huts and warehouses.

"After the war we will make steel for houses and farm buildings, and I hope we can locate a permanent plant in Mansfield," he added.

M. Don White, head of the Clyridon company, told the group that 120 women are employed at the plant and he anticipates nearly 150 more will be needed by fall to handle war contracts. The company makes fiber belts for the army, navy, and marines.

Taking over the club presidency, Mills said the organization faces its biggest task this year and it "can do a lot to help soften the shock of re-adjustment after the war."

Charles Conklin led group singing following the dinner period with John Grabler playing accordion accompaniment. President Hartman said the club eliminated the usual orchestra music and piano accompaniment to leave more room for the crowd which overflowed the ballroom, anyway.

KEEP VALUABLE ART IN CAVES

British Store Old Masters 300 Feet Underground To Avoid Bombings.

LONDON—(INS)—In 300-foot-deep subterranean caves are stored some of the greatest of British treasures. The complete contents of the National Gallery have been transported to these caves for the duration of the war as a safeguard against bombing attacks.

The temperature and humidity of the caves are scientifically controlled, and the paintings are being maintained in such perfect condition that experts are wondering what effect retransportation to London after the war will have.

"The paintings are enjoying a climate of such salubrity that the greatest problem for the future is to foresee how they will react when they leave it," writes Ian G. Rawlins, scientific adviser to the trustees of the National Gallery.

The pictures have between 200 and 300 feet of rock cover which renders them impregnable to air attack. Nothing short of an earthquake could harm them mechanically and the temperature is kept almost constant.

The large staff employed to take care of this vast subterranean art gallery gives ceaseless attention to the machinery controlling the temperature, humidity and ventilation, and a quarter of a mile of miniature railway has been installed.

The paintings are kept in six separate buildings—"envelopes" on a large scale—which can withstand light falls of rock.

There are powerful electric fans and emergency generators which can be brought into operation within three minutes of a breakdown.

The site was chosen by experts, after an extensive search, in September, 1940, and the move-in began in August, 1941, after 5,000 tons of rock had been removed. Two previously rejected sites have since experienced incidents which — had Britain's art treasures been stored therein—would have involved a major disastor.

Valuable information regarding the reaction of pictures to temperature and humidity has been collected during this venture, and will contribute to the post-war designing of museums and galleries, and will lead to the air-conditioning of such buildings.

Allied 'Chutists In Norway Raid, Report

LONDON — (AP) — Signs of increasing Axis invasion jitters from the Balkan frontier to the Scandinavian peninsula were highlighted today by a roundabout report Allied parachute troops had established a base in the Norwegian mountains and had sallied out in raids on Nazi-controlled factories.

The Norwegian government-in-exile here, commenting upon the report, declared "Quisling and the Germans appear to be genuinely alarmed," but said it could not give any confirmation.

The story came to London in Stockholm dispatches which said the Allied parachute base was somewhere in the Hardanger Vidda mountain lakes area, an ideal district for an airdrome and that it was equipped with a meteorological station.

The London Daily Press quoted the German radio as announcing Nazi troops were hunting the parachutists, said to be British and Norwegians.

On the southern border of the Allied invasion arc, Italian propaganda Minister Alessandro Pavolini announced Sicily, off the toe of the Italian boot, had become "a fortified outpost of the European continent itself against any and all attacks coming from the Mediterranean." Only yesterday Italy announced a new mobilization law to be applied in event of invasion.

to the spot where the bodies were found.

"I think that Reynolds was enraged upon learning from Lucille that she wanted to break off their relationship," Smith said, "and that he shot her, then climbed into the back seat of the car and killed himself."

Reynolds' body was found wedged between the back seat of the car and the back of the front seat. Miss D'Aprano's body lay in the front seat. Both were fully clothed and the girl had not been criminally attacked.

Smith questioned Reynolds' wife, Hattie, and she told them that Reynolds had left home Sunday evening without saying where he was going. She said she and Reynolds had driven Lucille, who was head waitress at the country club, to Cleveland on several occasions, and that on one or two occasions the couple had had dinner at the Cleveland home of Lucille's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. D'Aprano.

Mary Smallwood, dean of women at the university, said she had learned that Reynolds had been driving Lucille and other students, who worked as waitresses at the club, to and from their work, and she told the girls that she wanted the practice stopped.

Allen Parks, operator of the Twin Lakes club, told the sheriff's office that Reynolds' accounts were $500 short. Reynolds was in charge of the club kitchen and dining room, and was entrusted with funds to purchase supplies.

In 1935, while he was under a numbers racket investigation, Reynolds was charged with the fatal shooting of William Mencey, a negro chauffeur, in a quarrel over a woman. He served two years in Ohio penitentiary at Columbus on a manslaughter conviction and was released. It was understood, at that time, that members of the country club had intervened in his behalf and were successful in having him paroled.

The sheriff's department clung to the murder-suicide angle because all the bullet wounds bore powder burns.

No fingerprints showed on the .32-calibre revolver found in the car because it had been handled too many times before it was examined, Smith said.

The three socialites abducted are shown at top. They are Armour, left; Helen Joy Priebe, 18, who recently inherited the major part of $800,000, and Kent Clow, son of the vice president of a plumbing firm. The young robbers held up Father McGovern, Hillsdale, Ill., priest and took his car and then rammed Clow's car. Robbery and abduction of the young socialites then followed.

with children would be placed in these various classes as soon as draft boards are authorized to call them for induction.

Meanwhile, War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt and War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis were moving to implement the new "work-or-fight" policies enunciated Tuesday by President Roosevelt in the cases of men over 38, conscientious objectors and the physically disqualified, or 4-F's.

Through the cooperative effort of the war manpower commission, county farm bureaus and selective service, an attempt will be made to meet the manpower shortage in dairy farming, estimated as 50,000, from these groups. Next, they will tackle other phases of agriculture and simultaneously will move to fill the needs of essential industries from the reservoir of men over the draft age and the physically disqualified who now are in unessential jobs.

Another phase of the program is the new policy on releasing men aged 38 or over from the army to take agricultural or essential industrial jobs. Beginning today, these men will be transferred to the inactive reserve instead of given an outright discharge from the army when they ask for a release from active duty in order to take such jobs. A man placed on inactive status who fails to keep his job or fails to meet what is considered a fair productive capacity would be recalled to active army duty.

Other programs which took effect today are:

1. The 48-hour week order in 32 specific areas and in the lumbering and non-ferrous metals mining industries on a nationwide basis.

2. Reclassification of all men aged 38 through 45 who now are in 4-H, the overage class, and are entitled to the agricultural classifications, 2-C and 3-C, the latter group being subject to further classification when the new plan goes into effect.

3. Draft age men in certain occupations and activities which were designated by McNutt Feb. 2 as "non-deferrable" are being reclassified 1-A unless they have registered with the U. S. Employment Service for war jobs. If they have not shifted by May 1 or 30 days from the date of furnishing evidence of registration for a war job to their draft board, they will be replaced in 1-A and subject to induction.

at this stage of the war, has no desire to sacrifice all of them in what can be no more than a limited holding operation and thus has no alternative but to order a "Dunkirk." (Previous Spanish reports said that Hitler had ordered "a last man" stand.)

The attempted evacuation—if and when it come—probably will touch off the biggest sea and air battle of the whole war in the Mediterranean. Britain has powerful naval units based at both Alexandria and Gibraltar and the Allied air forces in North Africa now are stronger than ever before.

Reports from Rome said Premier Benito Mussolini first resisted, but then accepted, the German demand that the Italian fleet—still a powerful force—be placed at the disposal of the German high command for the evacuation.

From France came a report that German naval authorities have demanded that all French merchant ships now idle in Mediterranean ports be sent to Italy to augment the Italian merchant fleet, badly mauled by British submarines and Allied planes, in the evacuation.

(A Daily Mail dispatch from Madrid said the tonnage of the French ships, immobilized since the German occupation of the former unoccupied zone, was estimated at 330,000. Some of the ships, the dispatch said, were ordered to go to Genoa and Spezia, naval bases in northern Italy.)

'Fight To Last Man,' Rommel Tells Corps

WITH ALLIED ADVANCE FORCES IN TUNISIA — (AP) — Faced with disaster as Allied armies drove steadily forward on all fronts, Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel today issued an order to his troops demanding utmost compliance with Adolf Hitler's edict of no surrender.

The chief of the Africa corps, gradually being hemmed in on all sides, called upon his troops to fight to the last man "at every hill and on the last beach."

His order clearly confessed realization that before long he and his forces will be driven into the sea.

In effect, the order means that the war in Tunisia will become more violent every day.

As a result of the rebuff which the farm heads feel they have been given in seeking price powers for Davis, there was renewed interest in the Bankhead and Pace bills. One farm head polled farm bloc leaders yesterday and found them sure that they have the votes to pass the Bankhead bill over a veto.

The Bankhead bill excludes benefit payments in computing parity for the purpose of making farm crop loans or establishing ceilings. It is now on President Roosevelt's desk. The Pace bill would require that farm labor costs be included in computing parity prices.

have been winding up their weekly affairs on a Thursday to give themselves a long week-end.

However, Bricker's insistence last week that the solons act on the Kane sales tax repealer, removing the sales tax from prescriptions and restaurant meals, and some sort of measure relaxing female labor standards, so far has gone unheeded. A week ago today he declared that the two bills probably would come to the floor for a vote some time this week.

The Kane bill, already passed by the senate, has been locked in the house taxation committee since Jan. 28, and the restaurant lobby is getting restless. Cards demanding that the bill come to the floor of the house are beginning to flood house leaders.

The house passed the French bill, simplifying procedure in the sales of lands forfeited for delinquent taxes. The bill shortens the length of time a piece of property must remain on the delinquent tax list before forfeiture from two to three years, simplifies the method of public sale, and guarantees a good title to the purchaser.

The senate confirmed Don Fisher's appointment as state liquor director, 27-0, with the former Belmont county resident to serve at the pleasure of the governor.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 1, 1943.

Not too late to give to the Red Cross.

Springtime motto: Plant something and watch it grow.

OPA denies a rumor that soap is to be rationed—thus stopping in its tracks any inclination to remark, "That takes the cake."

Poison Gas As Enemy Weapon

CHARGES that the Japanese have introduced the use of poison gas into their war on the Chinese have not yet been sufficiently authenticated to warrant retaliation in kind—but this may be expected to come along at any time the desperation of enemy nations drives them to adopt this ghastly form of barbaric warfare.

Whatever extremes Japan may feel called upon to take against China, which is ill-prepared to combat poison gas attacks, it should be kept in mind by the Japanese aggressors that China no longer stands alone, and that President Roosevelt has said that use of poison gas against the Chinese "would be regarded as though directed against ourselves."

During the early stages of war, England prepared against enemy use of poison gas in an anticipated invasion attempt by Hitler and it now seems unlikely that the fuehrer will invite visitation of any such horror upon Germany by taking the initiative in this type of warfare.

It was at one time revealed that American experts were being sent to China to train Chinese troops in defensive and offensive methods of gas warfare, but it seems improbable, in view of the relatively small amount of help thus far given China, that sufficient gas masks or poison gas production facilities are available in that country to meet a Jap onslaught.

Japanese militarists would do well to realize, however, that this advantage will not continue forever and that when China's land communications with her allies are reopened, with great numbers of United Nations planes within bombing range of Japanese cities, the supply of poison gas will be ample to meet retaliatory requirements. Needless to say, the United Nations will not make the start in using this cruelest and more barbaric of weapons.

Less Meat Will Be 'Enough'

AMERICANS are due for a diet of less meat and more vegetables. The process has already begun, but heavy meat eaters probably will learn as they go along, in this as in other matters of curtailment. It may be expected that what Europeans would call the "amazing ration" of two pounds a week will shrink somewhat later on. British and Russians have about one pound a week, and others have less. The Greeks have none.

It becomes harder here to get minor parts of meat animals that are now available, such as the heart, liver and so on. And the deprivation will be felt by many people, especially men doing hard and heavy work.

People in general, however, should soon be able to get used to such partial privation, and appreciate their blessings. Eating meat in quantity is usually a habit rather than a necessity. Most people, at least people of youthful or middle age, and not engaged in heavy work, can learn to get along with less by substituting more fruit and vegetables. And in many cases such people may discover to their surprise that they find no loss of physical energy. Many of them, indeed, especially people not engaged in hard muscular work, will probably find themselves stronger and healthier than usual.

Barbers Shifting to Other Jobs

ADVENT of the safety razor, which has gained constantly increasing acceptance during the past forty years, brought a marked change in the barbering trade, which, in its better forms, ranks close to a profession.

For a vast majority of men, use of a safety razor was substituted for daily, semi-weekly, or weekly visits to a barber shop—and shaving at home became a part of daily routine.

This gradually made hair-cutting the primary function of barbering, with longer intervals elapsing between visits of patrons. The result has been that at least a few barber shops in some cities confine themselves entirely to cutting hair and giving scalp treatments.

Announcement that the price of hair cuts in Mansfield union shops is being advanced to 75 cents, and shaves to 40 cents is not surprising, when the scarcity of capable barbers is considered, together with opportunities open to make more money in other lines of less exacting employment. It is regrettable, however, that an official of the barbers' union should express himself to the effect that the price increase is "none of the public's business"—as it seems to be very directly a matter of the "public's business."

As with other items of cost, it is probable that many families will budget a reasonable amount for barber shop service to Dad and the boys and for beauty parlor expenditures by Mom and the girls—but it may be hoped that, in the case of men and boys, this will not extend to a sufficient reduction in visits to the barber shop to result in widespread revival of the House of David vogue in unshorn locks.

Those Small Aircraft Carriers

BEST NEWS that has come out of the navy recently is that of the building of small aircraft carriers on both Atlantic and Pacific seacoasts. In them may be the answer to the submarine problem.

These auxiliary carriers not only furnish flexible convoy protection, but also have uses as ferrying aircraft and in fleet operations. "Some of them are already in operation in all of the seven seas," according to Secretary Knox, and "scores of them are now under construction."

The big flat-top makes a good target for enemy planes. But the little fellow is less vulnerable. The first ones were rebuilt merchantmen, without enough speed to suit all purposes, though they have already given good account of themselves.

Unheeded Warning

TROUBLES attending Hitler's efforts to introduce into Europe what he calls a New Order should make him appreciate what Machiavelli, the 16th century Italian philosopher and statesman, once said: "There is nothing more difficult to take in hand, more perilous to conduct or more uncertain in its success, than to take the lead in the introduction of a new order of things."

PLAYING THE VEGETABLE COURSE

Speculation About Invasion Plans Appropriate Topic for April First

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AFTER we've finished with Tunisia, where do we go? We are invited to pleasurable speculation by British Home Secretary Herbert Morrison's statement in the house of commons anticipating the possible "use of this country as a base for offensive operations."

The secretary, who also is minister of home security, announced the whole east and south coast of Britain, to a depth of ten miles, would become a restricted area today. This zone lies on the English channel opposite the "invasion coast" of France.

April Fool? Well, it could be, just to keep Herr Hitler's nerves hopping, but it encourages the expectation a United Nations invasion of western Europe may come before long. This is bolstered by the excellent Allied progress in the Tunisian campaign, which must be concluded, or at least clinched, before any major invasion can be attempted.

Expectation also is fostered by the fierce aerial bombardment of Germany and occupied territory—an essential preliminary to an invasion of western Europe.

Now of course only the Allied high command can say where an invasion may strike. Still, without trying to read the command's mind, it's reasonable to expect some move as soon as the African campaign is sewed up, since Hitler can't be allowed a free hand to attack Russia when the good weather arrives. Also there seem to be three possibilities for major invasion, and the defensive preparations of the Nazis show they agree with this estimate. Those three places are:

1 The French coast from the neighborhood of Boulogne and Calais, on the narrow part of the channel down past the mouth of the Somme to Dieppe. The Allies probably would strike in several places simultaneously and develop those which seemed profitable. They also might make other attacks as far north as Norway, chiefly for diversive purposes.

Recognition of the danger is seen in the fact the Nazis are feverishly strengthening their already formidable coastal defenses.

As has been emphasized in this column, an invasion from the English channel would produce perhaps the most terrible battle of history, with all three fighting arms, land, air and water participating. Certainly it would be the most dangerous legitimate military operation which could be undertaken.

2 Italy and the Great islands of Sicily and Sardinia, together with French Corsica which the Italians occupy. Compared with the French coast this indeed would be soft, for Italy's heart isn't with the Axis. Main resistance presumably would come from the German forces which occupy the country.

In this connection the diplomatic correspondent of Reynolds news, in London, has stated categorically the Nazis have taken over control of the Italian fleet. It will be used partly for defense against invasion and partly for offensive actions. The Italians will man the ships and the Germans will give the orders, according to the report.

3 Greece, together with Crete and the islands of the Aegean, possibly in conjunction with an invasion of the Balkans by Turkey.

Here again the Germans smell trouble. Reports from Ankara say the Hitlerites are nervous over developments in the Mediterranean, and are sending troops into that theater.

The fortifications of the strategic Greek port of Salonika are said to have been reinforced, and gestapo agents have been sent to the Axis-occupied Greek islands to apprehend suspects among the residents.

Sheep-Thinking Jinx

JOHN BURTON, commentator, traveler and philosopher, is a good natured creature. But America's increasing tendency toward "sheep thinking" gets in his hair.

For years he has heard us echo and believe petty rumors, vicious gossip and half truths. He has watched us swallow the most unmitigated trash without making the slightest effort to investigate its source or accuracy. He has seen us change from a nation of sturdy, individual thinkers to a regimented mass of yes-men who believe and pass along anything we hear however stupid or malicious. Until at last it was too much for Mr. J. Burton Whereupon he gave us the works in this immortal bitz

"MASS PRODUCTION IS A SPLENDID ACHIEVEMENT OF WHICH WE MAY WELL BE PROUD. BUT MASS THINKING IS NOT!"

Never was a truth better spoken or more needed. We Americans strain our tonsils proclaiming our Liberty. We sneer with contempt at the goose-stepping Germans who are forbidden to listen to foreign broadcasts and may pay with their lives if caught.

We have no pity for the truckling Italians or for the slaughtered Hollanders who are shot by the score because they dare to speak their minds and differ with some official German decree.

"I'D JUST LIKE TO SEE THEM TRY IT ON US FREE YANKEES", we snort.

YET ALL THE TIME WE'RE WEARING AS MANY SHACKLES AS ANY POLISH PRISONER AND JUMPING AS QUICKLY WHEN THE WHIP CRACKS.

Because why? Because we refuse to do our own thinking and will gleefully grab any morsel of "news," however rancid, than grub for the Truth.

Admitted thinking isn't an easy indoor sport for anyone, particularly in times like these. There's always the chance we'll make ourselves unpopular or ridiculous. Any snooty fool can laugh us down with sensational quotations.

Every shallow opportunist can win our applause if he uses a patter which inflates our ego and adds our ignorance. Moreover, we seldom have enough evidence to prove our point and have jumbled our statistics. Well, suppose we have? What of it? We will, at least, have made an honest effort to use our minds and will be the stronger because of that effort, even if we risk humiliation.

IT'S BETTER TO MAKE A DOZEN BLUNDERS UNDER YOUR OWN STEAM THAN TO LIVE SMUGLY AND SAFELY BY ECHOING PUBLIC OPINION.

It's obvious, of course, that none of us have the right to air our opinions from the housetops regardless. Democracy demands co-operation, tact and self control as well as individual initiative. It's the better part of all wisdom to keep your mouth shut most of the time. But think things through, while you do so. Never accept any rumor or trend unless it checks with your own common sense. Otherwise, you'll be as great a menace to yourself and your community as a time bomb.

Sheep thinking is never good. It is actually a form of mental hari-kari. Every time you let someone else run your mind, you surrender a portion of your own self respect, your intellectual independence, your vital curiosity, your true inner life.

For your true life is lived in your thoughts. You are what you think. Your final, your only reliable refuge, outside God, is your mind. You are as strong, as free, as courageous as that mind. If you have dared to think for yourself, you will always have a reserve source of strength . . . you will be A MAN. If you let others do your thinking . . . if you sell your mind for a mess of public prattle . . . you will always be a sheep. You will have only one answer to all life's problems—"BAA-AA-AH!"

P. S. Thanks, John Burton.

WHAT a man this Lieutenant General Sir Bernard Cyril Freyberg is! If you saw a man like him in the movies you'd just call it Hollywood exaggeration.

He once won a 'Frisco Harbor swim, fought in the prize-ring in New York and in the days when there was nothing exciting going on he made a habit of trying to swim the English channel. He was Barney Freyberg then.

State Department Envoy Ignored Gold Still Stored at Martinique

WASHINGTON—How tolerant we have been of the French Island of Martinique, for two years thumbing its nose at us within bombing distance of the Panama canal, is illustrated by a conversation which took place between the state department's Sam Reber and treasury department officials.

Reber had gone to Martinique to negotiate with Vichy Admiral Robert regarding the airplane carrier, cruisers and six oil tankers rusting in Martinique waters. Subsequently, the state department announced that an agreement had been reached with Admiral Robert whereby these ships would be turned over to the U.S.A. Months have passed, however, with no result.

After State Department Envoy Reber returned, treasury officials asked him:

"What about the gold in Martinique? What is to become of that?"

They referred to 25 billions of gold francs still stored in Martinique.

"Oh," replied Reber, "that didn't come up."

"Wasn't it even mentioned?" asked treasury officials, who remembered how France had defaulted on her debts from World War I, still owing us several billion dollars.

"No," replied Reber, "did you think it would be safer up here?"

"Well, it certainly isn't very safe down there," countered the treasury.

"We decided," replied Reber, "that we didn't want to do anything which might infringe on the sovereignty of France."

That ended the matter. The gold is still in Martinique, and Admiral Robert, who apparently isn't much impressed by the subtleties of state department appeasement, has continued to thumb his nose at the United States.

Connally Calls Cards.

THERE was a hot flareup between veteran Senator Tom Connally of Texas and freshman Republican Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan in a closed door session on the appointment of James Allred to the 5th circuit court of appeals.

Until this meeting, administrationites had high hopes of converting Ferguson to Allred's side, which would have meant a 10-8 vote for the Texan's nomination. Even Connally, a political skeptic, thought the Michigan Republican might forget politics and oppose the efforts of Louisiana's two senators to ditch Allred in favor of Archie Higgins, a former Huey Long henchman.

However, Ferguson immediately launched a violent political attack on the president for naming "lame ducks" to federal posts.

Apparently Ferguson was not convinced by evidence produced by Connally and others that Allred had no understanding, direct or indirect, with the president that he would be reappointed to the bench after stepping down from the Federal District court to oppose Texas Senator "Pappy" O'Daniel in the last campaign. The Michigan Republican has made a fetish of opposing the president on all major appointments, and proved it on this occasion.

"I'm against all these New Deal lame ducks getting jobs from the president after they have been licked in an election," he stormed, "I'm especially against playing politics with the federal judiciary."

Ghost of Andy Mellon.

AS SECRETARY of the Treasury under Coolidge, Andrew W. Mellon started a campaign to lower taxes on higher bracket incomes, arguing that this would release more money for individual enterprise. In a way it did. It released millions for stock market speculation and the Coolidge Bull Market.

The Mellon theory later was called the "trickle-down" system, whereby a large amount of money released at the top gradually trickled down to the wage-earner at the bottom. However, the trickle was so meager by the time it reached the bottom, that the inequalities of that system led to the too well remembered economic holocaust.

Today some Republicans, once sold on the Rumi plan, gradually are realizing that if taxes are forgiven, it is the man in the higher brackets who really benefits, not the low wage earner whose taxes are small anyway. That is why Democrats call the plan "robbing Peter to pay a bonus to Paul."

German news broadcasts are still preferred in the Dominican Republic, because the German programs provide lively Latin music, while U. S. programs bear down on the classics . . . Dorothy Thompson, in high dudgeon, telephoned Eugene Lyons, editor of American Mercury, to berate him and the state department for saying in an article by Kingsbury Smith that the U. S. government plans the political and economic decentralization of Germany after the war . . . Both Alabama senators, John Bankhead and Lester Hill, are members of Phi Beta Kappa.

Love of Pets Displayed By Soldiers; Quick Action for American Bomber Crew.

NORTH AFRICA—The American's love for pets never ceases to delight me. We are a people who are fundamentally kind to animals. You'd be surprised at how many nationalities aren't.

Our soldiers over here are shocked—I've heard them remark on it a hundred times—at the way the Arabs mistreat their dogs and burros. You'd laugh if you could see the collection of pets at one camp I visited recently. There were countless dogs, several cats, one gazelle, one monkey, two or three rabbits, a burro, and, believe it or not, half a dozen chickens. A gazelle, as somebody said, is a cross between a jackrabbit and a moose. Actually it's a tiny, dollike deer, delicate and dainty, and stands no higher than a big dog.

ERNIE PYLE

You've heard of the gazelle's speed. They say they've been clocked at 60 miles an hour. They run wild in the mountains near here, and the French hunt them with shotguns. Many of our officers have gone on gazelle-hunting trips. Personally I could no more shoot one of them than I could a friendly dog.

About the cutest dog on the post is a fuzzy little mongrel called "Ziggie," which belongs to Corp. Robert Pond, of Denver. He paid 500 francs for it. When the American actresses were in Africa, Carole Landis took Bob's dog in her arms and asked if she could take it home with her. Seems she has two Great Danes and wanted a little dog to go with them. Bob, cooly superior to glamour, said "No."

I HAPPENED to fall in with four young lieutenants of a bomber crew who had recently arrived from America. They had been on three missions in their first ten days, and had got shot up every time. Not shot down—just shot up.

The third time one engine was knocked out, and one rudder fell clear off just as they landed at the home airdrome. They really started getting their thrills in a hurry.

I asked them whether this sudden taste of violent adventure popped them up, or whether they were beginning to wonder. They laughed and said their only feeling was one of regret and annoyance that their plane would be out of commission for a few days.

The four were Pilot Ralph Keele, a Salt Lake City Mormon, Co-Pilot William Allbright, of Western Springs, Ill., Navigator Robert Radcliff of Richland Center, Wis., and Bombardier Eugene Platek, of Antigo, Wis.

THE SOLDIERS have grown such a crop of beards that you think you've driven into one of our western towns just the week before the annual Pioneer day celebration.

Over here Hollywood could find every type of beard that ever existed. Some are big and fierce, some blond and curly, some wispy and foolish, some of the sourdough kind, others as prim and sharp as a boulevardier's. You'll even find the old Irish-type of jaw-whiskers.

I let mine grow for two weeks but nobody noticed it, so I gave up.

* * *

IN ALL this area near the front there is no such thing as a Post Exchange. The army instead issues free such necessities as cigarets, soap, razor blades and so on.

But at one forward post the other day I tried to get some tooth powder, and was told disgustedly by the sergeant that there wasn't any, because we weren't in the combat zone.

"Not in the combat zone?" I said with astonishment. "Who says we're not?"

"Some guy at some desk far far away," he said. "I don't know where he expects us to get in, in the first place, and in the second place I wish he were here a few nights when the bombs start whistling. I'll bet you couldn't get him out of a slit-trench all night. Not in the combat zone! Nuts!"

Surprise Ending

OUR three-year-old left his five-year-old brother piling sticks and brush behind the bank barn, and wandered off on business of his own. His cheeks were red, his eyes were dark brown and bright, and his close-knitted cap was twisted hind side before. The bar of red that was meant to mark the top, was behind one ear.

His feet sank into the soft moist soil where an old straw-stack had rotted, and he stamped them impatiently upon the floor of the feeding entry as he ran to see Betsy, the cow, who thrust a moist nose over the top of her manger. The little boy reached both hands into the bag of mash, and gave her a few mouthfuls in her box, moving his own tongue in unison with hers as she thrust out her long tongue and ate.

Then he went to the pigs' corner and watched the porkers finishing a troughful of wet mash. Leaning on the manger edge, he sighted something—two eggs in a hidden alcove beneath a feed box. He scrambled over, and brought out the eggs, in triumph. An idea—he would surprise his mother! He thrust an egg into each side pocket of his loose blue coat, and clambered out again, intent on his newly devised project.

He had often helped his older brother hunt and bring the eggs. They had a little basket that would hold about 18. He had no basket now, but to ask for it would give away his 'surprise.' And besides, mother might say "No, you are too little!"

So he went to all the places that he knew, and although the time was morning and only a few hens were on the job, it was good fun to look. He found three more in the henhouse, and still two more in the old stove in the shed. The hens had rounded up the nest he and his brother had made there for them. He swung the stove door back and forth, deliberating where to carry all his find without a basket. He managed to get two of the eggs into his overalls pockets, but still one more was left than he could carry in his hands. (Mother had said, 'Don't bring more than one in your hand at a time.'). He thrust it into his cap, put the cap back on his head—but not very far.

Then he ran very fast, to get into the house before the cap should come off. He came breathlessly in, where his mother worked at the kitchen table.

"I have a s'prise!" he said, and laid, one by one, seven white eggs upon the table. "With each one he dragged forth, his smile widened—and so did his mother's eyes!"

No—he didn't break any.

'Look," beams the Judge And he pulls out an article about a special kind o' he detector—an 'alcoho'ometer" they call it

When a fellow gets haled into court for doing mischief and blames it all on a 'couple of beers," this scientific machine proves whether just a "couple of beers" is really the true answer.

And o' course it isn't. Because a couple of beers, enjoyed with friends, is a way people keep out of trouble, not get into it!

From where I sit I certainly agree with the Judge The fellow with the alibi about a "couple of beers' is reflecting on good citizens everywhere who enjoy a quiet glass of beer with their meals—sittin' with their friends or just relaxing after a day's work Moderate folks like that are entitled to consideration

Sees 'Escape' for City Dwellers In Victory Gardens

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Professor Alex Laurie, Ohio State university horticulturist, says he does not expect Victory gardeners to produce their maximum potential food tonnage this year, but nevertheless 20,000,000 gardens in the U. S. can produce 10,000,000 tons of vegetables, and any considerable fraction of that amount will go a long way toward meeting a serious food shortage.

Urban residents are sure to obtain higher quality foods if they raise and harvest them themselves, Laurie said, and in addition they will benefit through the outdoor escape from "worry over world affairs" and from the development of a new understanding of the problems of farm families engaged in the business of food production in times of peace as well as war.

Fashion Spotlight's New Blouses

BY SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

Because blouses, shirts and pull overs are combined with both utility and dressy costumes this year they are designed in a wide range of both styles and fabrics Notable fashion points are the use of soft ruffled touches adding an extra note of femininity to simple solid color shirtwaists and the use of both large and small print designs in gay colors in ducklins and overblouses for wear with either sturdy sports costumes or softly tailored day time suits

So many and so varied are the fine rayon fabrics available in both patterned and plain version that the blouse picture becomes a scene of unusual interest All sorts of lustrous construction from dainty rayon sheers for lace trimmed dress up styles to suede like brushed rayon materials for sporting pullovers are represented in the new collections with accent on gay color and diversity of styling

The three blouses in the above photographs are excellent examples of the variety and smartness of these new models

One shirtwaist has a striking leaf design in black white and gold printed on fresh linen type spun rayon It has short slightly puffed sleeves and an open V neckline with a collar of the same material

The next is alluringly feminine It is made of fine rayon crepe with soft ruffling of the self fabric It is in a soft shade of light blue that teams as nicely with navy or brown as it does with black or bright colors

The third blouse is made of crisp acetate rayon taffeta in a navy rose white and gray woven checked patterning It is youthful and perky with an unusual box pleated yoke

The Way of True Blonds, Counterfeits

By MME. QUI VIVE

There seems to be fewer of the light-headed sisters than were with us in the past. Probably just as many blonde babies have been born each year, growing up to young ladyhood in course of time. But the synthetic yellow head is getting rarer and rarer. She has observed the misery of her sisters who have flirted with the peroxide bottle. Their overhead was something terrible. Dashing to the beauty parlor for a touchup every month or so. But now there's little time for that indulgence.

It is a shame that nature does not give a color guarantee. Brown hair, red hair, stay as is. But the darling towhead suddenly finds that she is going drab or coppery or darker. She registers extreme pain, wails loudly, and a lot of good it does her. This situation may present itself in the early twenties; it may be delayed until the thirties. But in nearly all cases it comes at one time or another.

Whenever a blonde refers to her golden halo she will tell you that it is a bother and a bore. It must be carefully shampooed, and often. It must be beautifully arranged. The brunette's mop can be casually scrambled, but not the golden crown. One single stray whisp and she looks dowdy.

If blonde hair is not given the most fastidious attention, it will become dull and without character; strong shampoo agents are devastating, removing the glints that are its chief charm. To permit soap scum to remain upon the shafts is to hasten the darkening process. There should be a shampoo every fortnight. The soap should be melted, the rinsing done with a bath spray and a strong current of water. The spray is more thorough than the shower.

If it is a practice to have a finger wave every week or so with the long session under the dryer, the silky shafts should be lubricated at least once a month. The night before the shampoo, apply hot mineral oil to the scalp; friction it into the ends of the hair, which are dryer than the growth at the roots.

When tempted to play with peroxide, keep this fact in mind: the first treatment may be extremely satisfactory, but there will be the new darker growth to contend with all the time. Nature goes right on about her business, and a part of her job is to push forth a new growth of hair, sometimes to the extent of five inches a year.

The touchup must be only on the darkened portions of the shafts. If applications overlap, there will be trouble. The hair will be streaked or it will take on a brassy tone that proclaims itself as artificial.

Only an experienced operator is qualified to do this delicate work. The home job is a grand old fizzle.

Giving him credit for knowing what he is about is the first fundamental to thwarting his nefarious schemes. West was willing to let his partner treat that double any way he wanted to. He remained firm when South redoubled, which sounded as if it might be a bluff to scare him into some bidding. After leading his spade K, however, and getting the high 7 from his partner, he decided that the redouble was probably the real thing, and desperate measures would be required. He reckoned South expected to take some clubs in addition to his hearts, and might be void in diamonds.

So he went after a ruff in clubs, leading his singleton. He reckoned that South would win this and return a trump to the A. Then, acting upon his partner's signal, he would lead a low spade to East, who undoubtedly would win with the Q and return a club for the setting trick.

Very neat figuring. But South also had seen that spade 7, and knew what West was up to. He must keep East out of the lead, or the ruff would beat him. So he won that club lead with the J in dummy and immediately led the diamond K, sure that West would have the A. On this he discarded the spade 9, now making him blank in that suit. This made it impossible for East ever to have the lead. So no ruff was scored against him and his contract was safe. The only other trick West could get was with his trump A.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I'm not usually curious," Philip Veritzen said, supplementing Dicky's appeal, "but I'm so interested in the scene Mary was staging that I eagerly await any explanation of it."

The noted impresario does not deign to express open curiosity, but by devious ways he manages to find out all about any interesting happening to his friends or employes.

Now I felt that I had to deal with a very delicate problem. Could I tell the bald truth to Olga and say "Georges showed unusual romantic interest in Mary today, so she staged this exhibition to disgust him?"

Olga knew we were all familiar with what Dicky called "the international romantic quartet" in the old days—Georges and Mary, Noel and Olina—and of Olina's despicable behavior to Mary before Olga married Noel's father, but I did not know how much she guessed of Olina's real reason for that behavior, for Olina had told me she had not confided to her mother the discovery of Mary's miniature in Georges' watch, which led to the breaking of her betrothal to the young King of Trees.

Olga To the Rescue.

But Olga herself solved my problem, as I hesitated.

"Perhaps it would be easier if I told you an old story," she said, "and then put some questions to you. Would you like that better, my dear Madge?"

"Oh yes, indeed," I said, feeling as if I had received a reprieve.

"I do not know the reason lying back of part of this story," Olga said, "for Olina never has confided them to me. I only know these highlights.

"It was always understood in our court circles that sometime Olina was to marry Georges. She was not headstrong, but valued highly her personal freedom, and she ran away from her father and me when we were on our American tour. You know where she found shelter and friends, and I shall always be eternally grateful to you.

"I know, of course, that for a time she and Noel were betrothed, also Georges and Mary. Then the four changed partners, as you say over here, and Olina came back home as Georges' promised wife.

"I never knew how or why it happened," Olga went on, "but suddenly Olina told me that she and Georges had broken their betrothal, and that she hoped she never would see him again."

Uncertain About Georges.

She paused now, is if trying to find the right words.

"Then came our exile," she went on, "and—something you all know or I assuredly would not refer to it—her inexplicable and atrocious behavior toward Noel and Mary.

"I always have felt that the root of it lay in the quarrel of Georges and Olina, and that Olina never really cared for Noel at all; that her heart was still in Georges' keeping, despite her protests.

"But when, after my marriage to you, my Philip," as she flashed her husband a glance of affectionate comradeship, "Olina suddenly changed her behavior and became Mary's loyal friend, I felt that I must wait until in her own good time she should tell me what is in her heart.

"But now," she concluded, "while I am fairly certain of Olina's feeling toward Georges, I am afraid he has carried a romantic image of Mary in his heart all these years, and that he still is attracted by her. Do you agree with me, my dear Madge?"

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, April 2.

SPLENDID prospects of a joyous, prosperous and progressive day are noted in the astral operations. It is a time for reaching for high and happy culminations. A most expansive, generous and abundant influence prevails, urging to endeavors to reach for cherished goals, but in all be temperate, prudent and have regard for the health.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of prosperity, happiness and the rich fruition of long-cherished hopes and wishes. Probably paramount will be the pursuit of pleasure, culminating in romantic friendships, courtships or marriage, under this expansive, generous and gracious rule.

A child born on this day, although being ambitious, efficient and progressive, enjoying prosperity and popularity, should give some attention to its physical well-being.

Fashion Spotlight's New Blouses

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

Because blouses, shirts and pull-overs are combined with both utility and dressy costumes this year, they are designed in a wide range of both styles and fabrics. Notable fashion points are the use of soft ruffled touches adding an extra note of femininity to simple solid-color shirtwaists and the use of both large and small print designs in gay colors in tuck-ins and overblouses for wear with either sturdy sports costumes or softly tailored daytime suits.

So many and so varied are the fine rayon fabrics available in both patterned and plain version, that the blouse picture becomes a scene of unusual interest. All sorts of luxurious construction from dainty rayon sheers for lace-trimmed, dress-up styles to suede-like brushed rayon materials for sporting pullovers are represented in the new collections, with accent on gay color and diversity of styling.

The three blouses in the above photographs are excellent examples of the variety and smartness of these new models.

One shirtwaist has a striking leaf design in black, white and gold printed on fresh linen-type spun rayon. It has short slightly puffed sleeves and an open V neckline with a collar of the same material.

The next is alluringly feminine. It is made of fine rayon crepe with soft ruffling of the self-fabric. It is in a soft shade of light blue that teams as nicely with navy or brown as it does with black or bright colors.

The third blouse is made of crisp acetate rayon taffeta in a gay rose, white and gray woven checked patterning. It is youthful and perky with an unusual box-pleated jabot.

Wednesday Program Initiates Candidates

CANDIDATES were initiated in honor of graduate regents at the Chapter program, Wednesday night, presented by officers of the Women of the Moose, Mansfield chapter 47. Mrs. Lester Perry, senior regent, who was in charge of the program was presented with a corsage of camellias by the officers.

One hundred and fifteen were presented for the initiatory services. Candidates wore patriotic emblems for identification. The five guests who were introduced as graduate regents of the local lodge, in whose honor the candidates were initiated were Mrs. Joseph Gresmer, Mrs. Charles Caugherty, Mrs. Elmira Coleman, Mrs. William Beal and Mrs. Ralph Kornoely. Each regent received a corsage with war stamps cleverly arranged in them, after which she gave a short talk.

The alumni committee gave the chapter a War bond, which was presented by the chairman of the committee, Mrs. Steve Jocha.

Violin selections were featured on the program. "Little Symphony" by Doncla was presented as a duet by Eugene and Richard Greisbach. Richard Beilstein played two violin solos. They were entitled "Andantino" and "Fair Rosemarin" by Fritz Kreisler. All selections had piano accompaniment by Miss Carol Anne Spencer.

To each participating in the program, the chapter presented a gift. At the close of the evening, a buffet luncheon was served in the Fiesta room at a table centered with Easter flowers and candles, in charge of Mrs. Louis Pillar, junior regent and Mrs. G. E. Yingling, treasurer.

The committee consisted of Mrs. Harlan Bridges, Mrs. Elmer Bletz, Miss Ruth Whiteman, Miss Marie Moore, Miss Evelyn Jocha and Miss Katherine Cheney.

A covered dish dinner has been planned for April 5, by Mrs. H. H. Donley, child care training chairman and her committee. Mrs. Jacob Herf and her committee will be in charge of the Chapter night program, April 28. This meeting will be formal and closed. The next regular meeting will be held April 14 at the Moose home.

The Way of True Blonds, Counterfeits

By MME. QUI VIVE

There seems to be fewer of the light-headed sisters than were with us in the past. Probably just as many blonde babies have been born each year, growing up to young ladyhood in course of time. But the synthetic yellow head is getting rarer and rarer. She has observed the misery of her sisters who have flirted with the peroxide bottle. Their overhead was something terrible. Dashing to the beauty parlor for a touchup every month or so. But now there's little time for that indulgence.

It is a shame that nature does not give a color guarantee. Brown hair, red hair, stay as is. But the darling towhead suddenly finds that she is going drab or coppery or darker. She registers extreme pain, wails loudly, and a lot of good it does her. This situation may present itself in the early twenties; it may be delayed until the thirties. But in nearly all cases it comes at one time or another.

Whenever a blonde refers to her golden halo she will tell you that it is a bother and a bore. It must be carefully shampooed, and often. It must be beautifully arranged. The brunette's mop can be casually scrambled, but not the golden crown. One single stray whisp and she looks dowdy.

If blonde hair is not given the most fastidious attention, it will become dull and without character; strong shampoo agents are devastating, removing the glints that are its chief charm. To permit soap scum to remain upon the shafts is to hasten the darkening process. There should be a shampoo every fortnight. The soap should be melted, the rinsing done with a bath spray and a strong current of water. The spray is more thorough than the shower.

If it is a practice to have a finger wave every week or so with the long session under the dryer, the silky shafts should be lubricated at least once a month. The night before the shampoo, apply hot mineral oil to the scalp; friction it into the ends of the hair, which are dryer than the growth at the roots.

When tempted to play with peroxide, keep this fact in mind: the first treatment may be extremely satisfactory, but there will be the new darker growth to contend with all the time. Nature goes right on about her business, and a part of her job is to push forth a new growth of hair, sometimes to the extent of five inches a year.

The touchup must be only on the darkened portions of the shafts. If applications overlap, there will be trouble. The hair will be streaked or it will take on a brassy tone that proclaims itself as artificial.

Only an experienced operator is qualified to do this delicate work. The home job is a grand old fizzle.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I'm not usually curious," Philip Veritzen said, supplementing Dicky's appeal, "but I'm so interested in the scene Mary was staging that I eagerly await any explanation of it."

The noted impresario does not deign to express open curiosity, but by devious ways he manages to find out all about any interesting happening to his friends or employes.

Now I felt that I had to deal with a very delicate problem. Could I tell the bald truth to Olga and say "Georges showed unusual romantic interest in Mary today, so she staged this exhibition to disgust him?"

Olga knew we were all familiar with what Dicky called "the international romantic quartet" in the old days—Georges and Mary, Noel and Olina—and of Olina's despicable behavior to Mary before Olga married Noel's father, but I did not know how much she guessed of Olina's real reason for that behavior, for Olina had told me she had not confided to her mother the discovery of Mary's miniature in Georges' watch, which led to the breaking of her betrothal to the young King of Trees.

Olga To the Rescue.

But Olga herself solved my problem, as I hesitated.

"Perhaps it would be easier if I told you an old story," she said, "and then put some questions to you. Would you like that better, my dear Madge?"

"Oh yes, indeed," I said, feeling as if I had received a reprieve.

"I do not know the reason lying back of part of this story," Olga said, "for Olina never has confided them to me. I only know these highlights.

"It was always understood in our court circles that sometime Olina was to marry Georges. She was not headstrong, but valued highly her personal freedom, and she ran away from her father and me when we were on our American tour. You know where she found shelter and friends, and I shall always be eternally grateful to you.

"I know, of course, that for a time she and Noel were betrothed, also Georges and Mary. Then the four changed partners, as you say over here, and Olina came back home as Georges' promised wife.

"I never knew how or why it happened," Olga went on, "but suddenly Olina told me that she and Georges had broken their betrothal, and that she hoped she never would see him again."

Uncertain About Georges.

She paused now, is if trying to find the right words.

"Then came our exile," she went on, "and—something you all know or I assuredly would not refer to it—her inexplicable and atrocious behavior toward Noel and Mary.

"I always have felt that the root of it lay in the quarrel of Georges and Olina, and that Olina never really cared for Noel at all; that her heart was still in Georges' keeping, despite her protests.

"But when, after my marriage to you, my Philip," as she flashed her husband a glance of affectionate comradeship, "Olina suddenly changed her behavior and became Mary's loyal friend, I felt that I must wait until in her own good time she should tell me what is in her heart.

"But now," she concluded, "while I am fairly certain of Olina's feeling toward Georges, I am afraid he has carried a romantic image of Mary in his heart all these years, and that he still is attracted by her. Do you agree with me, my dear Madge?"

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, April 2.

SPLENDID prospects of a joyous, prosperous and progressive day are noted in the astral operations. It is a time for reaching for high and happy culminations. A most expansive, generous and abundant influence prevails, urging to endeavors to reach for cherished goals, but in all be temperate, prudent and have regard for the health.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of prosperity, happiness and the rich fruition of long-cherished hopes and wishes. Probably paramount will be the pursuit of pleasure, culminating in romantic friendships, courtships or marriage, under this expansive, generous and gracious rule.

A child born on this day, although being ambitious, efficient and progressive, enjoying prosperity and popularity, should give some attention to its physical well-being.

West was willing to let his partner treat that double any way he wanted to. He remained firm when South redoubled, which sounded as if it might be a bluff to scare him into some bidding. After leading his spade K, however, and getting the high 7 from his partner, he decided that the redouble was probably the real thing, and desperate measures would be required. He reckoned South expected to take some clubs in addition to his hearts, and might be void in diamonds.

So he went after a ruff in clubs, leading his singleton. He reckoned that South would win this and return a trump to the A. Then, acting upon his partner's signal, he would lead a low spade to East, who undoubtedly would win with the Q and return a club for the setting trick.

Very neat figuring. But South also had seen that spade 7, and knew what West was up to. He must keep East out of the lead, or the ruff would beat him. So he won that club lead with the J in dummy and immediately led the diamond K, sure that West would have the A. On this he discarded the spade 9, now making him blank in that suit. This made it impossible for East ever to have the lead. So no ruff was scored against him and his contract was safe. The only other trick West could get was with his trump A.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—The reason there won't be a big coal strike this year is that John L. Lewis as decided not to attempt one in the middle of war.

Recently the war has been winning in Washington. That has not always been the case. Sometimes the war comes second—after some contractor gets his or some group gets its cut.

Clapper

But the war sometimes wins out, although we don't hear as much about those instances as we might.

For instance, the war won out over the farm bloc on one point—the question of whether the cost of living should be increased by tinkering with the farm parity formula. That action, taken by the senate in the interest of holding the cost of living steady and thus discouraging inflation, has helped to strengthen all hands in Washington that are interested in that.

The restraint on the part of John L. Lewis is likewise a certain indicator of the force that war's demands are coming to have here.

That is the meaning of the news that the United Mine Workers and the northern and southern operators will not interrupt work when their contract expires, although they are far from completing negotiations for a new contract. Dr. John Steelman, head of the U. S. conciliation service, brought the southern operators around to complete the agreement against any strike this year.

Two years ago Mr. Lewis took his miners out of the mines on less of an issue than he has raised this time.

In fact there usually is a strike every two years when the bituminous contract expires, even if only for a few days as a kind of demonstration of strength. The last time, in 1941, the mines were tied up during April. The chief controversy was as a wage differential between northern and southern mines. Then 50,000 miners were out over the issue of introducing the closed shop into the captive mines owned by the steel companies.

Neither of these questions had the proportions that the current issue does—the demand for a wage increase of $2 a day. Rising living costs sharpen that issue.

But this year President Roosevelt notified all parties that there must be no strike. Furthermore there must be no break away from the wage ceilings set in the little steel formula. This is war, and the commander in chief can give the orders.

That was bitter beer for Mr. Lewis. He could have neither his strike nor his wage increase. And that from the president against whom he turned with irrevocable hate after deciding that the president was showing no gratitude for the half-million-dollar campaign contribution in 1936. How can a labor leader lead when he can't offer his men either a raise or a strike?

Possibly Mr. Lewis will salvage a fair equivalent of a wage increase.

Coal miners have been paid only for the work they do after reaching the face of the coal down in the mine. A court decision recently held that iron-ore miners were entitled to be paid from the time they went through the company gates. If the time spent going down the shafts and through the tunnels to the face of the coal should be added in as pay time, then Mr. Lewis could show his miners a pay increase under another name, with the hourly rates of pay remaining the same. That is the way out that is being considered.

That is a compromise, to be sure. But the fact that there was no coal strike this year is bound to be of enormous influence in discouraging other strikes.

The lead of Mr. Lewis and of the United Mine Workers is likely to be followed by many other labor groups. Had they been able to go through with a strike, we would have seen a prairie fire of labor trouble.

But when John L. Lewis, embittered as he is, tough as he is, and desperate to regain his old spectacular place in labor's vanguard, decides not to strike but to keep on working while he argues, then no one else is likely to be headstrong enough to pull a strike.

HOOVER WANTS INTERNATIONAL AIR POLICING

Proposes Creation of World Plane Force To Maintain Order After War.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Creation of an international air police force after the war to "keep the world free of aggression" is proposed by former President Herbert Hoover in an interview with the United Press.

Mr. Hoover also suggested that the victorious United Nations strip the Axis powers of their airplane factories and, expanding his subject to post-war aviation in general, urged adoption of an international "freedom of the air" policy which would encourage great overseas air commerce.

Planes alone, the former president said, could do the job of maintaining world order, thus allowing extensive land and sea disarmament, while depriving war-minded powers of airplane factories would be the most effective means of blocking ambitious dictators or militarists.

"Neither a Hitler nor a Tojo would be so ambitious if there were a prospect of a continuous air attack until such persons came to reason," Mr. Hoover said.

"If combat planes were reserved to the victorious powers after this war, they could, by a comparatively small combined force, keep the world free of aggression with planes alone. It opens a great vista of land and sea disarmament if the world acts intelligently about it."

Regarding the problems which will arise when the victorious nations compete for world air commerce after the war, Mr. Hoover said he doubted whether the "larger area victorious nations will give up their sovereignity of the air."

"There must be some organized international relations as to air services," he said

He said that flying over the land of other nations or landing at their interior airports—such as a Canadian air liner landing at Indianapolis—could be done by consent or reciprocity of the nations concerned.

WELLES STATES ALLIES WORRY OVER U.S. PLANS

Undersecretary Says Partners Wonder About Post-War Policy of Nation.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, said today that "one of the gravest doubts that exists in the minds of the partners of the United Nations today is the doubt as to what the policy of the United States will be when the victory is won."

Welles, in an address prepared for delivery to the Chamber of Commerce of the state of New York declared that our Allies remember that after the victory of 1918 the United States "withdrew from almost every form of practical cooperation" with friendly nations in the reconstruction tasks, and "made no effort to win the peace."

"Our Allies are asking themselves now whether we will again follow that same course," Welles said. "In a very real sense the decision that will be made with regard to the renewal of the trade agreements act will be regarded by peoples throughout the world as an acid test of our future intentions.

"They will see in that decision a clear indication as to whether the people of the United States have determined upon a policy of international cooperation for the future, or whether they will once more turn back to that road of isolation which leads to inevitable disaster."

In the post-war period, the undersecretary said, it will be necessary for this country to supply its fair share of immediate relief to those left destitute in the wake of the war, "not only for humanitarian reasons but for reasons of purest self-interest."

In the interest of the taxpayer, Welles said the relief period must be as short as possible, "which means that peoples of the devastated countries must be placed upon a self-reliant and self-sustaining basis as rapidly as possible."

Treasury Offers Post-War Stable Money Proposal.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr. revealed today that he had submitted to the finance ministers of the United Nations a proposal for the stabilization of currency after the war and had invited them to discuss this and other post-war monetary plans.

Morgenthau emphasized that the treasury's proposal, which was drafted in consultation with the state department and other government agencies, was not in the form of a "plan."

"It would be very discourteous," he said at a press conference, "to offer a 'plan' since the whole purpose of our invitation is to invite them (United Nations' financial ministers) here for conferences to produce a 'plan'."

HELP GET FOOD, OHIOANS URGED

Persons With Knowledge of Farms Asked To Work In Fields, Processing.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—All Ohio citizens who once lived on farms and have knowledge of agriculture were asked by the Ohio War Agricultural committee today to volunteer their spare time for work in the fields and in food processing.

The committee, with the approval of Governor Bricker, also called upon the federal government to make greater use of food producing potentialities of other nations," so that the drain on the productive capacity of the United States will be diminished.

Meeting at the call of the governor, the committee also agreed to ask the office of price administration to place its rationing and price programs "in the hands of persons experienced in the highly complicated food distribution business so that utter confusion and waste now existing in major food markets will be corrected."

The committee called upon experienced agricultural workers who have left the farm for industrial employment to return to their farms "where their talent and experience is so badly needed to provide food."

The "surprise reversals" of federal agricultural policies designed to "unshackle" the American farmers' efforts to meet unprecedented food demands, Governor Bricker told the committee, are traceable to the "grass root surveys" and recommendations made by the committee.

The change in dates yesterday for Mansfield's black-out test and for the Civic Music association concert served to clear up a lot of confusion on the part of both civic music patrons and those interested in the black-out. Both affairs were scheduled for April 6, but the change in both dates yesterday ended the worries of those troubled by the conflicting dates. The black-out takes place April 8 and the concert appearance of Paul Robeson is scheduled for April 15.

YOUTHS EAT DISEASED FOWL

Police Report Stolen Chickens Inoculated With Sleeping Sickness; Boys Treated.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Six chickens inoculated with encephalitis—sleeping sickness were eaten by a half dozen Staten island boys, police reported today.

The chickens carrying the virus of the dread disease were stolen Tuesday night from Dr. John A. War, a veterinarian who has been experimenting on brain diseases of poultry.

The youths were treated at St. Vincent's hospital when it became known they had eaten portions of the infected hens. They had suffered no ill effects so far, hospital physicians said, and were given an antidote of castor oil.

A strict watch over the boys was ordered to see if any symptoms of the disease appeared.

Seventeen chickens, in all, were stolen from Dr. Ward on Tuesday night but it was only yesterday that he discovered that the six roasting size hens he had inoculated with encephalitis virus were among those missing.

Alarmed that anyone eating the disease-bearing fowl might be stricken, Dr. Ward asked police to make a widespread appeal. Hospitals were notified and a warning was sounded over the radio in Staten island.

Dr. Ward said that anyone eating eggs produced by the hens might be stricken.

One of the six youths heard the radio alarm and appeared at the hospital with his companions. After the hospital treatment all the boys were allowed to go home.

Enforcement, Dog Quarantine Keeps Sheep Damage Down.

Owing to strict enforcement of dog tag laws and the guarantine of dogs now imposed as a result of a health department order, damage claims of Richland county farmers for sheep killed or injured by dogs during March were the lowest for any month in the last three years, county commissioners revealed today.

Claims for March totaled only $61.85, representing two claims. Largest was that of E. B. Paramore for $48, while the other was filed by Charles Watman for $10.

Fees of appraisers, who were R. H. Forbes and George Spaerr for Paramore and C. H. Curran and M. R. Sponseller for Watman, accounted for the additional $2.85 expense, besides the claims.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Pictures in tune with our times: On a rain-drenched stage representing a Russian airport a great American conductor was arriving by plane for a concert tour. Somewhere in the throng a pretty Russian girl was trying to get the conductor's attention, to beg him to appear at her village.

So began "Russia," one of Hollywood's film tributes to the Soviet ally. (Another: Sam Goldwyn's "North Star.") Gregory Ratoff, our own mad Russian, was directing this picture on the same lot, M-G-M, that made 'Ninotchka" and "Comrade X," pre-war film jabs at Communism and the Soviet. Times and attitudes have changed but Ratoff has not. He is still the same voluble, English-twisting, enthusiastic fellow he always was, perhaps more so because he was making a movie about his native soil. He had his little joke, even signs threatening dire consequences to anybody the set who speaks Russian. This was a joke cause Ratoff himself would be the first to feel own ax.

Coons

"Russia" is Robert Taylor's final picture before porting for naval aviation duty. The girl is san Peters—the one Ronald Colman almost mard in "Random Harvest."

In "Right Guy" new leading man Jess Barker, from the stage, was undergoing a physical from draft board examiners. The story has the board pronounce him 4-F, so chagrinning him that he can't go back and face the youngsters who idolized him at home and acclaimed him as their hero. He goes to work at a war plant, meets riveting Claire Trevor, and finds heroism at home.

While the scene was being filmed, a party of visiting soldiers arrived to watch. They had come to see movie glamor, and what they saw was a draft board examination. They all grinned, but agreed it looked like the real thing.

After Jess Barker, who hails from Greenville, S. C., and Broadway, told how his screen test was made by Gregory Ratoff. Jess appeared on the test stage, along with two other leading man candidates, both of whom proceeded to get Ratoff's goat.

"I think he's got so irritated with them that he went out of his way to make me feel at home," says Jess. "I believe that's why I got the contract."

In "Appointment in Berlin" George Sanders plays an Englishman who goes to Germany, pretending to be a traitor and lining up with the Nazis—a sort of Lord Haw-Haw character.

When Sanders came to the set, ready to work, he was not interested in talking about pictures, or Sanders, or—in short,—in talking much. The star of "Appointment in Berlin" had an appointment with Uncle Sam. Just under 38, he was—if he passed the physical—in line for a real appointment in Berlin.
